GOVERNOR,
JAMES A. BEAVER, of Centre county.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
W. T. DAVIES, of Bradford county.

JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT,
WILLIAM HENRY RAWLE, of Phila.

SECRETARY OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS,
JOHN M. GREER, of Butler county.

CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE,
MARRIOTT BROSIUS, of Lancaster.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

MRS. Sarah B. Jacobs, of Boston, has given $5,000 to the University of Vermont for the endowment of five scholarship.

IT is expected that Seaborn Reese, a young lawyer of Hancock county, Ga., will be the successor of Alexander H. Stephens in congress.

IT was held by a good many people during our rebellion that the side which began a battle on Sunday was pretty certain to lose it, but no such belief forms part of Sir. Garnet Wolseley's military creed.

HANLAN, the oarsman, says he has found he cannot successfully row matches and run a hotel at the same time, and therefore he will not go into training this year. But he thinks he will go to Australia this fall.

THE OMAHA Republican thinks that as the sultan has politely presented General Wallace with a Turkish girl, the president connot do less than return the compliment by presenting the sultan's representative at Washington with Dr. Mary Walker.

A BOOKSELLER who endeavors to circulate a book which a reputable publishing house refuses to publish on the ground of its indecency is not engaged in the sort of business which will smooth the wrinkles out of the pillow on which his head will, rest when he comes to die.

IT'S A little early in the season for snow storms, but one is reported from the wonderful west. This peculiar storm is said to have struck a vessel in the centre of lake Michigan, and is probably as true as a good many of the stories which are manufactured for the amusement of the public during the heated term.

IF THE people out west occasionally take the law into their own hands and engage in lynching objectionable characters, they could not find better subjects than the traders who supply "bad" Indians with breech-loading rifles and ammunition. Without these the Indians would be powerless for mischief.

REV. PHILLIPS BROOKS was expected in London at the date of the last mails, on the return from his Continental tour, and the World calls upon Dean Bradley to imitate the courtesy of the late Dean Stanley and invite the eloquent American to preach in Westminster Abbey, where his sermons, on the occasion of his former visit, were largely attended and very highly appreciated.

ONE of the first tokens of the bad policy of the rapacious rings who ran up meat recently is the establishment of a Canadian rival, which guarantees to place the best flesh in the world in the English markets at ten cents a pound. For this very meat we pay from twenty to thirty cents a pound. The Canadian company will have the advantage of easier facilities than their American rivals, for the great cattle-feeding plains of Middle Canada are nowhere far from the markets and great transportation lines.

The Educated Pig.

A few years ago public interest was greatly excited over an educated pig which was exhibited by several showmen and at last fell into the hands of Barnum. Not only could this intelligent animal find any card wanted in a pack scattered over a platform, but any letter in the alphabet, and any number called from the audience, very rarely making a mistake. Such a wonderful thing set the scientists all agog and gave the theories of Darwin and Huxley an amazing boom, till it was discovered that whenever the pig put his foot on the wrong card or letter a sharp steel point was pushed into it, and he removed it speedily to a card free from such a troublesome reminder and which was usually the right one. This of course explained all and the ingenius showman found his pig no longer profitable. Now the Democratic party resembles that pig remarkably. It has gotten up a reputation for tolerable intelligence simply because when it has gone wrong the Republican party has pricked it back to the right track, without which reminder it would never have awakened to the fact that we do not now live in an age when men wear buckskin breeches, and regale themselves on cold buckwheat cakes. It did not know what the Nation meant till it was pricked with about a million of bayonets nor what freedom meant till Abraham Lincoln pricked them with the pen wherewith he wrote the immortal proclamation of emancipation. It wished to put the Public Lands in the hands of politicians by keeping them as so-called national assets, but the Republican party taught it a better lesson by making the lands the property of every loyal son of labor, deeming the best national assets to be the homes of sturdy men and contented, happy women and children. The Democratic party has not only invited the competition of English against American labor, but has absolutely proposed to make the way smooth and easy by the removal of duties from English manufactures, which is tantamount to the pauperization of the great mass of working men in this land, and their reduction to a level with the scum in Europe's overcrowded cities. But the Republican party in its magnanimous might has shown the Democratic pig that its foot is on the wrong card, by the popular endorsement of its policy in the last presidential election. The protective policy is peculiarly necessary for the working population in this State. It appeals to the instinct of self preservation in every man, and he who votes the Democratic ticket or aids the so-called Independent allies of that party, deliberately takes the bread from the poor man's mouth, and adds increased rotundity to John Bull's abdominal region. We cannot expect that Lewis Cassidy's callow fledgling will be better than his party. While in the ordinary walks of life his youth and insignificance would screen him from censorious notice, the position he assumes to hold makes it necessary that he should bear the burden of his party's sins, and he will not, like Pilgrim, find a cross on his way at which he may unload his offensive burden, but he will never be likely to bring it into the State House at Harrisburg as the Chief Magistrate of Pennylvania, and that will be another thorn in the foot of the educated pig. General Beaver on the other hand emphatically represents the poor man's best interests and aside from the honorable record of his party he is of himself so just and sympathetic, that his very nature is a strong pledge of an honorable and considerate administration.

THE continued shooting of each other by the democrats of Kentucky is at last beginning to bear fruit. The republicans have just carried Boyd county, in that state, for the first time.

A Word to Pennsylvanians.

The voters of Pennsylvania are called upon in the coming elections to settle issues of much wider importance than the interest of a single State. The Presidential election looms up in the not distant future, and should a Democrat become Governor and Democrats be injected into many of the State offices, the proverbial dishonesty of the party leaders would find full scope for warping the result from the will of the people and inaugurating a reign of fraud such as disgraces many of the Southern States to day. For twenty-two years the Republican party has ruled Pennsylvania. It has been a faithful conservator of the honor and glory of the State. It led it with redundant honor through the war. It taught the unruly element in society that rioting was profitless and dangerous, and it has lifted from the shoulders of the taxpayers a burden of thirty million o dollars, left by the Democrats as a legacy to the administration of Gov. Curtin. In the history of the war Pennsylvania has a glory all her own. This was the only State which formed a military reserve. Fifteen regiments were organized, thirteen of infantry, one of cavalry and one of light artillery for the protection of the State, and after the bloody repulse at Bull Run, when the North began to see for the first time the magnitude of the task it had undertaken, and in the terrible reaction of panic men began to despair, then Pennsylvania offered her reserves, not for three months or a single campaign, but for three years, for hard and terrible work, thus setting the example to other states of providence and foresight and a rare patriotism, and from the sand levels of Georgia to the bloody dells of Gettysburg, in the blind grapple of the Wilderness and the awful struggles of Fredericksburg and Chicamauga the old Keystone State was honored by her sons, and as the heart sends its thrilling tide from head to foot, from brain to hand, so the Pennsylvania reserves became the heart of the mighty army, which has made the name of the American soldier earth's proudest title. If one would read history, the history that God writes, not man, let him go to Gettysburg, as so many of our citizens did a few weeks ago, and there among the billowing mounds he will learn, if there be the heart of a man in him, implacable enmity for the party which brought on that awful fratricidal strife; for every grave is a capital letter beginning a new sentence in the history of Democratic shame. The honor of a State is as holy a thing as a woman's chastity, and if the honor of Pennsylvania is to be preserved every Republican must bring his vote to aid the election of Beaver and the Republican ticket. We have heard men boast that they take no interest in politics, and they seem to think it much to their credit to refrain from voting, but of all forms of cowardice we deem that one of the lowest and most demoralizing. It is accepting the results of good government without sharing the responsibility, or daring to be outspoken and bold. If you vote for Beaver you sustain all the traditions of the State's glory, and the perpetuation of its prosperity.

AFTER long, weary, and painful suffering, Senator Hill breathed his last Wednesday morning. His death had been anticipated for days, as it was patent to all that the terrible disease which had fastened itself upon him was incurable. He was a distinguished representative of Georgia, and as a senator has left his imprint upon the annals of his country.

THE speech for which William H. English, of Indiana, is universally condemned is the one made before the Democratic state convention, in which he classed the Saviour of the world with distillers and brewers of the state.

How the Government is Being Run.

President Arthur's Administration is more economical than that of any of his predecessors.

Take for instance the matter of customs receipts. In 1870 they amounted to $194,538,374.44, and the cost for collecting was $32.06 per thousand. In 1872 the receipts amounted to $216,370,286.77, and the cost of collecting the same was $32.11. In 1882 the receipts aggregated $219,986,000.00, and the cost for collecting was reduced to $29.57 per thousand, the lowest per centage since the foundation of the Government. The following shows the receipts from customs, the expenses and the per centage from 1870 to 1882, inclusive:

Year.	Receipts.	Expenses.	Cost per $1,000.
1870,	$194,538,374 44	$6,257,157 25	$32 06
1871,	206,270,408 00	6,560,672 61	31 81
1872,	216,370,286 77	6,950,189 81	32 11
1873,	188,089,022 70	7,079,743 42	37 63
1874,	163,103,833 69	7,419 913 83	44 28
1875,	157,167,722 35	7,028,321 88	44 72
1876,	148,071,894 61	6,704,888 09	45 25
1877,	130,956,888 07	6,001,037 57	45 82
1878,	130,170,680 20	5,826,974 32	44 72
1879,	137,250,047 70	5,485,548 87	39 97
1880,	186,822,064 60	6,023,263 53	32 25
1881,	198,159,676 02	6,383,288 10	32 21
1882,	219,986,000 00	4,506,359 26	20 57

These figures furnish valuable food for thought to the opponents of the Administration who think that the Government is not being managed economically. The Republicans are bringing down the expenses to the minimum.

MADISON AVENUE, a swell street in New York, is just now boasting of the pluckiest girl in America. She is a German servant girl, who was left in charge of the house while the family were at the seaside. She went out on an errand the other night and on her return found a burglar coming up the basement stairs with an armful of the family plate. Annie didn't call the police or go into hysterics, but just grabbed the intruder by the throat and froze to him like a steel trap. He was forced to drop the silver and defend himself, which he soon found was no child's play. Annie's grip was like the grip of death, and although fast losing her strength in the unequal contest she maintained her hold till a policeman, attracted by the noise of the struggle, appeared on the scene and took the robber in custody. Annie then went coolly into the house, made her toilet and went before a magistrate and made a complaint against the prisoner, after which she went home as calmly as though nothing had happened and went to bed. Now, that is something like a girl. And she is said to be young and good-looking, too

AMERICAN Consul Long's brutal treatment by the Alexandria populace gives another illustration of the untrustworthy character of the lower-class Mussulman. Consul Long has been noted in seasons of all sorts for his fidelity to his duties, so far as may be gathered from the public report. The attempt of the mob to slay him, and the threat that his life will be taken if he remains, from an odd commentary on the state of discipline into which the British have brought the rioters of June and the plunderers of July. If the lowest class of a city mob may ordain the tenure of a foreign Consul, there doesn't seem to be much difference between the anarchy of Arabi and the despotism of the British.

THE better class of Democrats think that the time has arrived for them or William H. English, of Indiana, to leave the party. He was an obstacle to their success in 1880 and his recent revilings of the cause of temperance and morality is having a disastrous effect.

ONE of the wisest things done at the late session of the State Teachers' Association was the adoption of a resolution recognizing the importance of primary teaching and calling upon school authorities to pay such salaries as will secure the services of experienced men and women in this department of education. The notion that "anybody" can teach little children has done incalculable harm. Everybody depends on the beginning, and yet in educating our children we are content to have them placed at the beginning of their school life in the honor of boys and girls who know little more than the children. It is time that a reform should begin in this direction. It is time people should understand that the easiest and best teachers should be put in charge of the little children. It is an outrage and a sin to entrust the work of educating them to mere bungling, on the principle that anybody can teach a little child to spell and read. Teaching a primary school involves a good deal more than that. Here the foundation is laid. If it be defective the whole structure will be defective.

THE Watchman is vainly aiming to accomplish two results: To impress people at a distance with the idea that the people of Centre county are not a unit in support of General Beaver and also to make its readers believe that this paper is indifferent to the gallant General's success at the polls. It seems unnecessary to answer a paper so notorious for untruthfulness. Suffice it to say that for reasons already stated and to which we expect to give further utterance during the campaign, we shall do all we can to secure General Beaver's election. In this we will be aided by nearly all the citizens of Centre County, the Watchman standing almost alone in its opposition. The refusal of the Watchman to support General Beaver is sufficiently accounted for in the fact that it has never been prominent in advancing the interests of Centre county or its citizens in the State and Nation. It fought Governor Curtin and defeated him once, and now it would like to play the same part in reference to General Beaver.

TEMPERANCE is making a progress in England which draws from the London Times the astonished remark that "its rise and growth are like the rise of a new religion. The duties it lays down are an addition to the accepted moral standard of the age. It is not long since good port wine and good church principles were thought to agree." Instead, the Church is placing itself uncompromisingly on the side of temperance, and Canon Wilberforce has begun an agitation to exclude public houses and gin palaces from church lands. As the established Church is one of the largest real estate owners in Great Britain, the reform is a practical one of very serious import. At present Archbishops and Bishops in their corporate capacity are perhaps the largest owners of public-house property in England, and Canon Wilberforce names one conspicuous scandal, where a church stands between two gin palaces, both owned by it.

MUSIC is again called into play to add to the attractions of the season at the seashore, and the Cape May visitors are to hear every night this week the famous Marine Band, which has taken advantage of the absence from Washington of the President and the Navy. There was hardly room for them on the Tallapoosa or the Dispatch, and so they get an outing at the Cape. Atlantic City has been stirred in friendly rivalry with the Cape, and finding that fireworks are brief and fleeting, is likely to set on foot plans for a musical festival to eclipse all previous efforts in that direction. The engagements at the leading hotels indicate a season much later than usual.

GENERAL NOTES.

GENERAL O. O. HOWARD is delivering temperance lectures in Eastern Maine.

SENATOR SHERMAN, who is at Mansfield, O is in favor of the Sabbath and against whisky

IN some parts of California the democratic organization is derisively named "the gin mill party."

A WESTERN geologist predicts that Montana will become the greatest coal-producing state in the union.

THE condition of affairs in the rolling mills and furnaces of Pennsylvania and Ohio is reported unchanged.

MRS. GARFIELD is worried by many invitations to attend Sunday school picnics. She ought to do a little newspaper work.

THE question whether it is right to keep a savage bull dog in a churchyard to bite marauders is puzzling a Milwaukee vestry.

THE oldest Methodist minister of Wisconsin is dead—Rev. Dr. Alfred Brunson, who died at Prairie du Chien last week, aged 90 years.

OF Boston it is said that medicine takes the lead of all other professions there—the man of fashion not unfrequently becoming a doctor.

THE Horseshoe falls of Niagara have entirely lost the shape which gave them the name, and present now the exact outline of the letter V.

A YOUNG lady, named Lavers, of Montreal, was accidentally and fatally shot Thursday at St. Jerome, Quebec, by a young man named Scott.

THE number of Chinese, according to the records of the custom house, who have arrived at San Francisco for the four years ending August 4 is 65,047.

CAPTAIN JOHN BODINE, "Old Reliable," will, it is believed, be the captain of the American team which will contest in the forthcoming international rifle match.

AT Matamoras, Mexico, the yellow fever cases are decreasing. Four new cases have been reported for the twenty-four hours ending at 9 a. m. Wednesday.

PETER MALONE, eleven years old, has died from injuries received Friday morning, in jumping off a car of the Pennsylvania coal company at Pittston, Pa.

A MEETING of the American society of microscopists was concluded in Elmira the other day. There was a large attendance from all parts of the United States.

ALFRED GUTHRIE, a resident of Chicago since 1845, died recently at the age of 77 years. He was the son of Samuel Guthrie, the discoverer of chloroform and percussion powder.

EMMA VOLLER, of Red Bluff, Cal., was so mortified by her sweetheart's appearance as an æsthetic at an entertainment that her mind became disordered, and she died after suffering intense mental agony.

A LARGELY attended meeting, the other day in New York, of the state committee of the anti-monopoly party, decided, by a vote of 18 to 14, to hold a state convention at Saratoga on the 13th of next September.

THE Dundee land company of Scotland the other day closed the purchase of 44,000 acres of timber lands in Mississippi and Crittenden counties, Arkansas, a portion of 150,000 acres to be bought in the state by that company.

WORKMEN are busily engaged in the Washington navy yard fitting out the monitor Passaic for sea. She has been lying at the navy yard for a number of years and has a house built upon the deck, which will be removed.

IT is said that at the Webster centennial celebration, at Marshfield, Mass., next October, will be read a recently discovered "paper, which clears up the charges against Daniel Webster in connection with the 7th of March Speech."

AT a Virginia watering place a gentleman asked another who was sitting near him three questions concerning sulphur water, and he discovered that he had been consulting the resident physician when he received a bill for $15.

FEW English Statesmen ever visit Ireland, notwithstanding the fact that Irish affairs for the last century have occupied a great portion of their thoughts. Lord Beaconsfield was never there, and Mr. Gladstone visited it for the first time only a few years ago.

FOUR fashionable London theatres, the Royalty, Prince of Wales', Strand and Criterion are ordered closed by the Lord Chamberlain, who considers them fire traps. The first will be extensively altered, the next two wholly rebuilt and the latter abandoned.

THE Cree Indians are reported to be much discontented at the inroads which the various projected railway lines will make into their hunting grounds, and threats are freely made against any surveyors who may commence operations on their reservation.

A POWERFUL argument used by Virginia readjusters against Rev. J. W. Dawson, colored, who is the democratic candidate for congressman at large, is that he is so saturated with democratic doctrines that he has married an Alexandria widow named Bourbon.

EVEN the Indians are becoming prohibitionists out West. Some of the red men at the Pine Ridge agency, Dakota, have asked the agent to post notices offering $50 reward for evidence by which any person is convicted of furnishing liquor to Indians under the law, and the savages will themselves pay the money.

NATURALISTS in Pittsburgh are discussing the reasoning powers of animals, the subject being suggested by the suicide of a dog. Its leg was broken, and it whined piteously for several days. Finally, in an apparent fit of desperation, it limped out to the bridge and jumped into the river. Those who witnessed the act believe that it was premeditated suicide.

A. B. CAMP, a miner at San Benito, Cal., left his family in New England, years ago, and went West to seek his fortune. Having prospered, he sent for his wife. He was in the mine when she arrived, and there she followed him, getting an affectionate reception. They started to leave the mine, he going in advance, when a part of the tunnel caved in, and she was killed.

Poetry.

ONE OF THESE DAYS.

Curled in the window-seat,
Watching the leaves
Whirling, whilst raindrops beat
Down on the eaves.
Dark seemed this world that day,
We two alone,
Changing to gold the gray,
Lived in our own.
Dreaming as childhood dreams.
Life must be good,
Whispering of nobler themes
Scarce understood.
Dreaming all love was true,
Eager with praise,
Smiling at all we'd do
"One of these days."

Here to the window-seat
Came you and I,
Whilst with his noiseless feet
Time hurried by.
Here as in childish days
Used we to dream,
Careless of wiser ways,
Love was our theme.
Sometimes I wondered, dear,
How it should last,
But the next moment, dear,
Doubts were all past.
Past as you answer me,
"Love never strays,
Happier still we'll be
One of these days."

Now by the window-seat
Stand I alone,
Whilst the wind drives the sleet
Making its moan.
Clouds might obscure the sun,
Sometimes of old,
But while hope's sands do run
Hearts and the gold.
Love, when the angel band
Called you away,
When in my clasp your hand
Passively lay,
Faintly your whisper then
Answered my gaze,
"Love, we shall meet again
One of these days."

WHY THE COWS CAME LATE.

Crimson sunset burning
O'er the tree-fringed hills;
Golden are the meadows,
Ruby flashed the rills.
Quiet in the farm house,
Home the farmer hies;
But his wife is watching,
Shading anxious eyes,
While she lingers with her pail beside the barnyard gate,
Wondering why her Jennie and the cows come home so late!

Jennie, brown-eyed maiden,
Wandered down the lane;
That was ere the daylight
Had begun to wane.
Deeper grows the shadows;
Circling swallows cheep;
Katydids are calling;
Mists o'er meadows creep.
Still the mother shades her eyes beside the barnyard gate,
And wonders where her Jennie and the cows can be so late!

Loving sounds are falling
Homeward now at last,
Speckle, Bess and Brindle
Through the gate have passed,
Jennie, sweetly blushing,
Jamie, grave and shy,
Takes the pail from mother,
Who stands silent by.
Not one word is spoken as the mother shuts the gate;
But now she knows why Jennie and the cows came home so late. —*John Heyn*on.

—Coriolanus, noble Roman, taffy;
Wouldn't give the voters brilliant;
Wouldn't tell 'em they were want;
Wouldn't tell 'em they were valiant;
Wouldn't kiss the Roman babies;
Said he'd see their dads in Hades
Ere he'd boss the dirty youngsters
Of a horde of dirty bungsters;
Said no office he would fawn for;
No! his togs he'd first pawn for
What he needed; no, he wouldn't
Give 'em taffy; no, he shouldn't!
Thus it was the noble Roman,
Fearless, peerless Coriolanus,
Just as might have been expected,
Never came to be elected.

—Grandma was nodding, I rather think;
Harry was sly and quick as a wink;
He climbed on the back of her great arm-chair,
And nestled himself very snugly there.
Grandma's dark locks were mingled with white,
And quick this little fact came to sight;
A sharp twinge soon she felt at her hair,
And woke with a start to find Harry there.
"Why, what are you doing, my child?" she said:
He answered: "I'se pulling a basting-thread!"
Wide Awake.

Our Story Teller.

Her Prisoner.

A STORY OF LOVE AND LUNACY.

The chill November sun had been down about a half an hour; the early darkness of the autumnal evening was begining to shield the dreary landscape, and Horatia Hart, standing at the little acclivity of the hill, came to a full stop and looked dubiously around her.

"I'm almost sure this is the place," said Horatia; "I've passed a deserted mill, six poplar trees in a row, and a ruined chalkpit all grown up with weeds and briers. And Helen's letters say three stone houses with iron fences around them, and terraced down to the river. One is shut up on account of some ridiculous ghost story, the second is a sanitarium, where genteel mad people are generally entertained,—only fancy having a sanitarium for a neighbor!—and the third is Helen's house. Or, stop,—is it the second that is Helen's house, and the third the sanitarium? It can't be possible that I've forgotten such a simple thing as that!"

Horatia, a tall girl of five or six-and-twenty, with handsome near-sighted eyes protected by eye glasses and luxuriant brown hair wreathing itself into a multitude of curls and rings over her low, square forehead, bit her lip from shear vexation.

"Wait," she said; "it is yet light enough to see. I'll look at Helen's letter again."

But all in vain was the diligent search in her dress pocket, her traveling-bag, the embroidered strap which held her novel and shawl. The letter was lost.

"What a goose I am!" thought she. "First, to adopt the ridiculous idea of surprising Nell instead of telegraphing sensibly to her when I was coming; second, to lose the letter! Well, there's no help for it; I must go valiantly forward and do the best I can—with goblins, mad people and all! for it is getting dark, and I've no idea of becoming a grown-up "Babe-in-the-Wood."

A brisk walk down the hill a turn or two amid the leaf-carpeted aisle of the woods, and Miss Hart came in view of the shadowy outlines of the three solid gray stone houses.

"The middle one is Nell's, she said. "I am sure of it. There are red curtains at the windows and the shadows of plants,—and Nell delights in warm colors and flowers. Ah, I've found her out at last!"

She opened the gate and walked in triumphantly.

Almost at the same instant in which the gate clicked behind her a tall, dark form arose from behind the shrubbery—a man's figure. Horatia started and her heart beat quickly, but she resolved to display no fear, and she stood her ground bravely.

"Does Miss Stanbury live here?" she inquired.

"No," said a sweet, deep voice in low, measured accents, "but King Solomon does. Excuse me—but I believe this is the Queen of Sheba?"

A thrill of icy horror ran through Horatia's veins. Was she, then, face to face, in the ghastly twilight, with a raving madman?

In an instant, however, she had decided upon her cue. Fears, doubts, hesitations were entirely out of the question. She answered:

"You are quite right. And you?"

"I am King Solomon—of course," was the reply. "Allow me to lead you to the palace."

He offered her his arm courteously, but Horatia recoiled. Glancing quickly around the surrounding shrubberies, she perceived a pretty little Greek summer-house embowered in vines.

"I should like to rest," she said, "in there before we go to the palace."

"As you please," the voice answered calmly, and the owner thereof led her with exaggerated courtesy to the pretty retreat.

"May I sit in your Majesty's presence?" he asked, smiling. "Because I have been standing out there half an hour at least, expecting your arrival."

But as he seated himself Horatia, whose quick eye perceived that there was a lock and key on the door, and that the closely-placed cedar logs of the summer-house, thickly interwoven with wistaria and woodbine, admitted of no escape, jumped up, rushed swiftly past him, and in a second had secured the door and was rushing frantically away with the key in her hand, her footsteps accelerated by the fact that "King Solomon" behind her was rattling at the door and shaking the solid cedar framework, while he called loudly for aid.

As she hurried breathlesaly up the graveled drive to the next house, her heart beating as if it would burst through her bosom, the door opened, a warm flood of firelight and candleshine streamed across the laurels, and Cousin Helen herself came out and looked up and down the path.

"I wonder what can have become of the baker's man?" she said aloud to some one within. "John, suppose you go and see."

"Oh, he's all right," contentedly remarked the barytone voice of Cousin Helen's husband inside. "You always are in such a hurry about everything, Nell!"

"There's some one coming up by the lilac bushes now," said Helen. "It's him. No, it isn't him! It's a woman! It's Horatia Hart!"

And with outspread arms of welcome she hurried to meet her cousin.

"Dear Horatia!" she cried, "I am so very, very glad to see you! But what is the matter? You look so pale! and you are trembling all over! Surely," she added, half in jest, half in earnest, "you haven't seen the ghost that walks the terrace in front of the Tilbury House?"

"No," said Horatia, letting herself sink into one of the deeply-cushioned ruby-velvet chairs in the old hall, which Cousin John had set out for her; "but I have seen a madman!"

"Good gracious!" said Helen.

"Wasn't very violent, was he?" Cousin John inquired.

"No," gasped Horatia; "I cannot deny but that he was civil enough; but he was mad—raving mad! Oh, Nell! oh, John! I was so frightened!"

"Where is the fellow?" cried Cousin John, grasping at a knotted black-thorn stick which hung on gilded hooks against the mantel.

"John, John!" shrieked his wife, seizing hold of his coat-tail; "You surely are not going to run into danger? Oh, John, think of me and the children!"

"I am going to the Sanitarium to beat up the doctor and one of the keepers," said Cousin John, disengaging himself from Helen's grasp. "Which direction did the madman go, Horatia?"

"I've locked him up," cried the triumphant Horatia, waving the key in the air, "in the summer-house! He's safe for the present, at least."

"Wise little girl," said Cousin John, sapiently nodding his head. Stay you here with Nelly, and—"

"But we don't want to stay, John," said Nelly, breathless with interest. "We want to see the captive. Don't we, Horatia?"

"Of course we do," said Horatia, who felt herself the heroine of the occasion.

And so, in a battalion of three, this strong force moved upon the Willow Dell Sanitarium.

Horatia had expected to see a row of cells iron-grated and guarded by ponderous locks; but to her surprise they were ushered into a cosy reception-room where gilt bird-cages, painted satin screens and cheerful pictures were arrayed in graceful attractiveness. The Superintendent heard their story with interest.

"It is very unfortunate that the lady should be startled," said he. "I was really not aware that any of our guests were at large since Miss Dupre, poor thing, got away. And we are quite sure that she will soon return. It's embarrassing to the neighbors, very, and I must see that it doesn't happen again. Saunders." (to a respectable-looking footman,) "tell Warren to look over the list and see what gentleman is missing from quarters."

"He calls himself King Solomon," said Horatia timidly.

"Ah, poor things, they have all sorts of delusions," said the Superintendent. "And Saunders ask Dr. Wainwright to be so good as to step her."

"Please, sir," said Saunders, "he ain't in. He walked down the path to try and coax Miss Dupre back, as he'd heard she was wandering around, and—"

"Very well," said the superintendent. "Then we had perhaps better go down after this unfortunate creature without him. Only his influence is very good on the patients. That's right, Saunders, the lantern. Now, Mr. Barlow," to Cousin John, "we will start, if you please."

And in five minutes they were all gathered around the summer-house, where "King Solomon" was safely ensconsed like a full grown mouse in a trap.

I'll unlock the door and go in if you'll hold the lantern," said the Superintendent. "They're used to me, and—"

"I assure you, Mr. Vernder, that you will not find me at all violent," said a quiet voice as the Superintendent stepped cautiously over the threshold.

"Why!" ejeculated that gentleman aghast, it's the doctor?"

"It's Dr. Winwright himself!" exclaimed Saunders from the background.

"You don't tell me," said the Superintendent, "that this young lady took you for a madman!"

"I believe it was a mutual misunderstanding," said Dr. Winwright, whose brilliant hazel eyes sparkled brimful of fun in the shifting light of the lantern. In the darkness I mistook her for our poor runaway Queen of Sheba," Miss Dupre, and she, not unnaturally, regarded a man who called himself "King Solomon" as a hopeless imbecile.

"I—I'm sure I beg ten thousand pardons," cried Horatia, turning scarlet amid the laughter of the assembled group.

"Pray don't mention it," said the Doctor. But after Horatia was safe beside the Barlow fireside, Cousin Nell wrung her hands in despair.

"There's an end for good and all," she said: "of the match I was going to make up between our Horatia and young Dr. Wainwright; for no man can be expected to fall in love with a girl who locks him up as a madman! And he was such a rising man in his profession, too. He would have suited you exactly, Horatia."

"I never want to see him again or hear his name," said Horatia, bursting into tears of mortification.

She went back to the city the next day, declaring that nothing should induce her to live next door to a "Sanitarium." But subsequently she was induced to change her mind by the persistent and accomplished Doctor, who had fallen desperately in love with his fair captor, and in due time he became her "prisoner for life."

A Petroleum Romance.

The Boston Advertiser says: A fellow New Yorker pointed out to me this morning a citizen of Pitttsburgh who was, at one time, a salesman in a retail grocery there, at a salary of $500 a year. When the petroleum excitement became rampant, he went to Titusville without any money, and after a few weeks fell in with a prosperous speculator and "struck oil," making $400,000 to $500,000 in a year. He increased this sum to $1,500,000, and was urged by his friends to retire from the oil region with the wages of his luck. This he refused to do, and before another twelve month he had lost it all but a few thousand dollars. Then he returned to Pittsburgh and went to work in a legitimate way. But the fever of speculation attacked him once more, and he betook himself a second time to the Oil Creek. After various shifts and adventures fortune visited him, and he was able to count his million. Trying to double this—he had fixed his figure at $2,000,000—he was again financially wrecked. This time he was so poor that he stayed among the wells, and was forced to earn a livelihood by becoming a day laborer. New opportunities opened to him, and a third time he got very rich. Reckless speculation once more brought him low, and he left for California, hoping to improve his prospects there. The fascination of petroleum drew him back. He made a fourth fortune, and lost it; and finally a fifth, with the same result.

Within a few months the fickle goddess has smiled for the sixth time, and he has invested all his money in Government bonds—well nigh $1,700,000—and forsworn speculation. He sold all his oil before the recent tumble in prices, and says he has learned wisdom by his experience. Having more than he will ever spend, he ought to be contented financially, and run no more risks; but I doubt if he will. The $2,000,000 he had fixed upon he has not yet reached; and he will be different from most speculators if he can resist the old greed. His wife, who is here, with four children—two grown-up girls, and two boys on the eve of manhood—was the counselor that induced him to buy governments. He himself is not fifty. In no other country than this could a man make six fortunes and lose five in less than twenty-five years. In America alone is the tale of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp daily, yea hourly, verified.

Alcohol can now be produced of acorns, and the song will soon be, "Tall larks from little acorns grow." —New York Commercial Advertiser.

Frontenac.

There are a few places in this world which seem to have been carved out with special design of illustrating in nature the beauties of the matchless character of the great Architect of the Universe—places which impress one with their sublimity, grandeur and majesty, as well as their quiet, peace and purity. Such a place is Frontenac, on Lake Pepin.

One of the most delightful and interesting trips offered the tourist through the United States is the boat ride on the Mississippi. No other river affords such varied and picturesque scenery on so grand a scale. The Hudson equals it for beauty, but the ascent or descent of the Mississippi is like the gradual unfolding of a panorama of ever changing beauty for hundreds of miles. The eye never tires and the mind is constantly feasting on the beautiful. About sixty miles below St. Paul the river widens for a distance of thirty miles to the width of from three to five miles and is known as Lake Pepin. It is bounded on the Wisconsin side by almost perpendicular bluffs which rear their magnificent crests from four to five hundred feet above the waters of the lake. The Minnesota side is composed of beautiful hills, valleys, plateaus, oak groves, etc.

On the Minnesota side about two thirds of the distance up the lake, Frontenac is situated. It is the site of the last of the four French forts located on the upper Mississippi, between 1683 and the fall of 1727, and received its name from the then Governor General of Canada, Count Frontenac.

Frontenac is perhaps as near perfection in all the points which make up the beautiful in nature as any place in the world. The rocky bluff, the grassy plateau, the cedar covered slopes, the wooded gorges, the fields of ripening grain surmounting some beautiful hill, covered with rich forest foliage, form a magnificent outline for the clear blue waters of the lake which reproduce from their liquid depths the gorgeous beauty which surrounds it. One of the grand features of scenery at Frontenac, is its immense scope, and the fact that the objects which make it up are proportioned to its size, presenting perfect harmony without monotony in its native wildness. At Lake Minnetonka, the most noted resort in the truly great North-west, not over six miles of very ordinary view can be obtained from any one point, while at Frontenac, more than thirty miles of grand, imposing scenery is spread out before the eye.

It was our good fortune to make the acquaintance of General Gerrard, who first visited Frontenac forty years ago, and becoming enchanted with the place purchased all the land for several miles along the river, and has since made it his home. To the courteous politeness of the General we are indebted for much of the pleasure of our stay at Frontenac. With him as our guide we visited many of the numerous points of interest. The General's home is a tastefully furnished cottage overlooking the lake, situated on a natural terrace which rises over one hundred feet above the water, and forms a beautiful avenue running parallel with the lake for over a mile, as level and smooth as if graded for a railway. From this terrace is one of the finest views possible to be imagined. Across the lake, on the Wisconsin shore, is the magnificent limestone bluff, known as the Maiden Rock three miles above and Stockholm four miles below, show their neat white cottages against the back ground of rich, green forest foliage which covers the hills around them. To the right, at your feet, Point Du Sable reaches its shrubbery covered arm far out into the lake, while six miles below appear the spires of Lake City. Far off in the dim distance of twenty miles, the wooded shores meet at the lower end of the lake. To the left rises a majestic wooded bluff, over four hundred feet high, presenting a three miles front of oval appearance known as Point No Point, while all around as far as the eye can reach an amphitheatre of hills appear, varied in every possible degree of appearance from the gloom of the dell to the fading sunlight on the bluff, covered with every foliage from the wild flower to the oak, with here and there a lone cedar standing out like a sentinel from some abrupt bluff where it had gained a foot hold. Over all this panorama, as we stood there wrapt in silent admiration at its wondrous beauty, the setting sun cast its reclining rays. Down deep in the calm waters at our feet were mirrored in gorgeous hue the clouds of crimson and gold. Firmament above, firmament below, almost meeting at their horizons. Just space enough between for heaven's smile on this lovely, peaceful scene as it bid us farewell on this sacred Sabbath evening.

We had the pleasure on Sunday of attending the Episcopal church, the only church at Frontenac. It is a neat, unassuming structure, bearing evidence of refined and cultivated taste in its interior arrangement, nestling among the trees on a second plateau above the lake. The church was built by General McLean, who resides here. The service is conducted entirely by the General and his family, and a more impressive rendering of the beautiful service of the Episcopal church, it has never been our pleasure to hear. We shall long remember it, and ever contrast the solemn, impressive delivery, full of meaning in every sentence, with the glib tongues and jumping jack gyrations we have listened to with disgust in extreme "high" churches.

The hotel at Frontence is admirably conducted by Mr. M. C. Fifield, an experienced caterer. Every means of pleasure is at hand to be partaken of by the guests, or not, at will: plenty of row and sail boats, fishing tackle, croquet sets, a fine billiard hall separate from the hotel building, parks, livery stable, etc. Several handsome cottages for small or large families, are convenient at the same rates as rooms at the hotel. As a place for quiet rest, Frontenac decidedly takes the lead and if one wishes to be entirely alone for a few hours, the sandy beach for miles along the shore presents great attractions in its variety of cornelians, agates and other handsome pebbles, as well as delightful scenery to add interest to a quiet stroll. The hills and valleys teem with beautiful wild flowers, cool and shade; or if one wishes to scale the neighboring peaks to catch a sunrise view of the lake before breakfast, they will be well repaid for their exertions. A three mile row across the lake will land you at the mouth of a splendid trout stream, several of which empty into the lake; or you can anchor your boat a hundred yards from the hotel door and amuse yourself hauling in wall-eyed pike, bass, pickerel, &c., and return to the hotel to feast upon the evidence of your skill. No superfluous conventionalities bind the rest seeker at Frontenac.

The natural man is in the midst of nature, the recipient of all its blessings, breathing its pure, fresh, life giving air and feasting the eye on all its perfect loveliness. Away from the vexations and cares of business, the mind is free to enjoy a new life.

Farewell! Frontenac. It may be that we shall never be permitted to enjoy thy wondrous beauties again, but the pleasing memories of the hours of peaceful rest, pleasures and happiness thou hast afforded us are treasured in our memories as a delightful foretaste of the joys of that unseen world whose bright portals are mirrored in thy clear blue waters.—W. F. B., in Galesburg Rebublican-Register.

She Wanted to Spank it.

"Give me the child."

As Beryl McCloskey spoke these words she looked into the face of Vivian Fairhope, the man to whom two years ago she had given the most precious treasure of a woman's life, her love, and in the delicate lines of her lovely face there was an expression that told more plainly than could words of a deep resolve the woman had taken.

Little Beatrice had been uneasy all the day, and now that the summer day was drawing to a close, and the long lines of rosy light that streamed up from below the western horizon seemed to rest like a benediction upon the heated earth, she was crying in the querulous, impatient way that brings alarm to a mother's heart.

Vivian handed the child to Beryl. "What are you going to do, darling," he said.

Looking at him with deep brown eyes from which gleamed a passionate love light, Beryl said in tones of thrilling tenderness.

"I am going to spank it, Dizzy."

To a country parson, not more than half way round the world from Boston, a rustic couple went to be married, accompanied by the aunt of the bride, an elderly female, with sharp eyes and nose, and a general air of intending to see that everything was done duly and in order. The aunt watched keenly during the ceremony, nodding her head vigorously at each emphatic word, and at the conclusion she rose energetically to her feet, saluted the newly married couple with a business-like air, and then turned briskly to the clergyman. "Mr. M.," she said, "I never met you before, but I know who you are, and I must say how beautiful and how grammatical you have married them two.

Hymeneal item: There was a marriage in colored high life in Austin not long ago. An Arkansas preacher, in retiring from the pulpit, said: "My brethren, I regret to leave you, but a more important duty calls me. "Twenty Years Ago."

"Twenty years ago, sweetheart."

As Daphne McCarthy spoke these works she looked into the face of the man she loved so well and the dimpled arm, whose pearly whiteness and beautiful rounded curves shone so bewitchingly through the soft, fleecy dress that the girl wore, clung more trustingly than ever to that of George W. Simpson. The day was indeed a beautiful one—a symphony of sound, and light and scent. Up from the maple trees came the sweet voices of the birds twittering to each other from newly-built nests amid boughs that swayed to and fro in the wind, and shook their latest buds into leaf and blossom. From far below came a murmur of waves breaking softly on a shingly beach, and, mingling with this murmer, the shouts and laughter of the fisher lads as they sported in the waters. The dim fragrance, and dappled lights, and pleasant sounds made a threefold joy to Daphne as she stood beneath the trees that June morning with her lover by her side. She stood on a part of the slope whence the trees had drawn back a little, and the light fell about her just beyond the verge of the shadow. Round her feet were dead leaves and living flowers, and soft, green mosses full of the sweet rain that had fallen the previous night. With one hand she shaded her eyes; the other was uplifted to bend back a branch which had barred the open space. Her hair was blown in a brown cloud about the girlish face, and the hazel eyes shone with a wistful look beneath the shading hand.

Standing in the centre of the little dell into which the girl was looking was a stately marble shaft around whose base the violets and pansies were clustering, and showing by their presence that loving hands had placed them there. For an instant Daphne did not speak, but the tears that trickled down her cheeks told all too plainly of the grief that was racking her young breast. Finally she turned to George, and, smiling through her tears, placed her head confidingly on his shoulder and seemed perfectly content.

"Is it not strange, darling," she said, "that I can never look on the grave of my mother—that mother whom I never saw, and who yielded up her young life when I was born—without a sense of bitter grief and desolation? Twenty years ago to-day, sweetheart, she died. It is a long time, dear, is it not?"—and again the girl smiled.

"Yes, my pet," replied George, "Goldsmith Maid was a colt then," and, bending down his shapely head with its coronal of shoe-brush hair, he kissed the little rosebud mouth. Then, pressing the lithe form more closely to him, he spoke with a grave tenderness that showed how much his words meant of a subject that was very near to his young heart:

"But though your mother be dead, Daphne," he said, "you have still my love to comfort and uphold you. And can you not speak now, darling, here beside that mother's grave, the words that will make me happy for life? Will you not promise me that when the autumn comes you will crown my life with a halo of your love and become my wife?"

For a moment the girl was silent, looking down and twining nervously around her fingers the tendril of a rose that she had plucked from a bank of the scarlet beauties that blossomed near the grave.

"Will you marry me, Daphne?" asked George again.

Still no answer.

"I cannot bear this silence, sweetheart, indeed I cannot," exclaimed the young man, his pallid face betokening the intense agony from which he suffered." You must end this terrible suspense some way. Tell me truly, Daphne, do you love me?"

Placing her arms about his neck and looking into his face with eyes from which the glad light of love was streaming, Daphne said to him in tones that thrilled his very blood

"I should gasp to gurgle."

Kidney Disease Cured.

Christiansburg, Va., 1881.
Suffering from kidney disease, from which I could get no relief, I tried Brown's Iron Bitters, which cured me completely. A child of mine, recovering from scarlet fever, had no appetite and did not seem to be able to eat at all. I gave him Iron Bitters with the happiest results.

The Soldiers' Orphans.

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 17.—At the meeting of the Soldiers' Orphan association—'sixteeners'-to-day funds were appropriated for a stone in the memorial church to be erected at Gettysburg. It was also decided to petition the legislature to repeal the law closing the soldiers' orphans school.

Colonel J. Howard Closson, of Philadelphia; Major John M. Cleckner, of Harrisburg; Captain Calvin Rehrer, of Pinegrove; Adjutant Winfield Scott Wenrich, of Philadelphia; Quartermaster Charles J. Miller, of Philadelphia; William Kemble, of Philadelphia,—all divimon officers—were in attendance. The grand opera house was crowded to its utmost limit in the evening. Invocation by Rev. Beers, of Harrisburg. In the absence of the mayor of the city Colonel McFarland welcomed the 'Sixteeners' on behalf of the citizens of Harrisburg. Governor Hoyt was absent. President Ed. T. Taylor gave an earnest address, after which General James A. Beaver was introduced. His remarks were frequently and enthusiastically applauded.

Ex-Senator Conkling.

NEW YORK, August 17.—The Commercial Advertiser prints an interview held this morning with Mr. Conkling on the article which appeared in the Albany (N. Y.) Journal of Tuesday to the effect that Mr. Conkling in one instance endeavored to induce Governor Cornell to sign the bill relieving the Pacific steamship company from a city tax of $100,000, and in another offered the goyernor a bribe to sign the bill to exempt the elevated railroad from taxation. Mr. Conkling said in regard to these charges that he had not been in Albany and that it was incredible that Governor Cornell could have been privy to the circulation of them. He spoke in a very general way about the attacks and said until he had read them, as he would try to do in the course of a week or so, he could not say anything further.

Return to Work.

PITTSBURG, Pa., August 17.—It is probable that the miners' strike will end before long as a number of the strikers returned to work in the mines along the Panhandle road to-day, notwithstanding the action taken at Tuesday's convention. It seems that the convention did represent a majority of the strikers, and a great deal of dissatisfaction is expressed at the resolution to continue the strike. President Jones attended a large meeting at Mansfield this afternoon at which the question of returning to work at reduced wages was discussed but no decision was arrived at regarding the matter. A large number of miners are in a destitute condition, and as prominent officers of the association said, "If they go in it will be because they are starved out."

A Mine on Fire.

CUMBERLAND, Md., August 17.—The Aston mine, owned by the consolidation coal company, situated at Pompey Swash, Lonaconing, and which has been smouldering for some time burst forth in a tremendous blaze at 11 o'clock this morning, shooting flames fully fifty feet in the air. The fire originated from the spruce slope of the same company, which has been worked out and has been burning since 1872. A dwelling situated over the burning mine is in momentary danger. Thomas O'Malley and family have just deserted it. There is said to be great danger of the fire communicating to the Vale farm estate with thousands of tons of underlying coal. The burning mine is being closely watched.

Yellow Fever Report.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, August 17.—To-day there were twenty-one new cases of yellow fever, seventeen Mexicans and four Americans, and three deaths—two Mexicans and one American.

Mysterious Murder.

BOSTON, August 17.—The headless body of a man, clad only in blue flannel drawers and high-top boots, was found yesterday morning, by a man rowing under the draw of the New York and New England railroad, hanging by the knees from one of the string pieces under the track. The man was about six feet in height, and must have weighed fully 200 pounds. The head, which was missing, had been severed from the trunk by some sharp instrument, as the cut was a clean one, without ragged edges. Five knife wounds were found on the back and breast, which looked as though made with a double-edged weapon. The body was taken to the morgue, but nothing was discovered that could lead to the man's identity. The body had not been in the water more than forty-eight hours. The theory has been advanced that the man's head was severed by a railroad train, but if so how did the body come underneath the planking of the centre of the track, the bridge being over its entire width? The body could not have been washed upon the stringer by the tide, as if it had been thrown or had fallen off the bridge it must have sunk, and would not have come to the surface for four or five days. From present appearances the man was murdered and the body placed where it was found, his head being cut off to prevent identification. The police are mystified, as no one can be found who saw the man about the bridge, or who heard any disturbance there.

A Picnic Train.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., August 18.—An attempt was made last night to wreck an excursion train on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad by placing a heavy beam on the track at a trestle near Alaquippa station. The train consisted of about six cars, well filled with men, women and children, returning from a picnic and was running at a rapid rate. The engineer saw the obstruction just in time to save the train from being precipitated to the ground below, a distance of forty feet. Who put the obstruction on the track or the motive that impelled him to engage in such an attempt at wholesale murder is of course unknown. The excitement produced by the discovery among the passengers was so great that for the remainder of the trip there was little if any hilarity indulged in. The railroad authorities have offered a reward of $500 for information which will lead to the detection of the would be wreckers.

General Butler.

BOSTON, August, 18.—A mass state greenback convention assembled this morning and after affecting an organization took a recess until this afternoon. After reassembling General B. F. Butler was nominated for governor on the second ballot. The other nominations were: Lieutenant governor, George Dutton; secretary of state, John Homes; treasurer, George Foster; attorney general, E. A. Snow; auditor, Augustus F. Merchant.

Needs to be Investigated.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., August 17.—The body of a child about 6 months old was found this afternoon on the rocks in Brandywine creek. It was neatly attired and appeared to have been in the water about two weeks. A lad testified before the coroner's jury that two weeks ago a man drove on the bridge about dusk, threw something in the creek which made a great splash, and then drove away. The matter is still under investigation.

The Jesuits Agitated.

QUEBEC, August 17.—The Jesuits of Quebec are again agitating for the restoration to them of all their property confiscated during the reign of Henry IV. The restoration is demanded as an act of justice, and the list of properties referred to contain some which are now of great value. The prompters of the agitation suggest that some outlying territory to the north be given as a recompense.

Went on a Strike.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—This morning one hundred and fifty hod carriers and brick layers at Pullman went on a strike for two dollars a day, the previous wages being one dollar and seventy-five cents. They have other grievances, including lost time by incorrect time keeping, and the necessity of paying car fare to this city. Both sides are stubborn.

Canada Wins.

HAMILTON, Ont., August 17.—The international rifle match was concluded to-day, the Canadians scoring 362 at the thousand yard range and winning the match by ten points—the totals being, Canadians, 1,189; Americans, 1,179.

Chester County Democrats.

CHESTER, Pa., August 17.—The democratic county convention at Media to-day nominated J. Edward Clyde, of Chester, for congress, and Bethel M. Custer, of Ridley, and Samuel Rhodes, of Auston, for assembly.

Attack on a Church.

PARIS, August 17.—Serious disturbances have occurred at Mont Seoule Sur Mines. The mob destroyed the church doors with dynamite, but the police prevented them from attacking the priest's house.

Another Murder.

CHICAGO, August 17.—Eugene Doherty, an ex-convict from Joliet, shot and killed Nicholas Jones, a waiter in a Halstead street restaurant, this morning, during a quarrel over the payment for some meat.

The Furious Flames.

LANCASTER, Aug. 20.—This afternoon the large country barn at the eastern limit of the city, adjoining the burned insane asylum, was totally consumed by an incendiary fire, with all the season's crops and other contents. Loss, $12,000; insurance, $7,200. While the fire was in progress another large barn, not far distant, owned by Samuel Renck was discovered on fire and it also was destroyed, with its contents, including a horse and three pigs. Loss $5,000.

George, alias "Tid," Bummer, suspected of incendiarism, was caught running from the barn at the time the fire was discovered and was arrested, and at a hearing committed for trial at next week's court. During the second fire John Green, a spectator, was trampled by a horse and received probably fatal injuries.

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 20.—A large bank barn on the western outskirts of the city, owned by Jacob Grieland, and occupied by Jacob Way, was destroyed this morning by an incendiary fire. The contents, including five horses and five head of cattle, were burned. Loss on contents, $4,000; insurance $2,000. Loss on building $2,000; insurance, $1,300.

A Circus Train.

CAIRO, Ill., August 20.—W. C. Coup's circus train arrived here at 4 o'clock this morning in two sections. When between Tunnell Hill and New Burnside, about 47 miles north of this city, the engine of the second section ran into the passenger coach on the rear of the first train, completely demolishing the coach and killing three wagon drivers and wounding about twenty-five or thirty others. They were going down grade from Tunnell Hill, and the first section was heavily loaded while the latter section was rather light. The second train was running fast at the time of the accident. The cars ahead of the coach in the first section and in the rear of the engine in the second section escaped without injury. Relief trains, with physicans, &c., were sent to the scene at once.

Dundour's Sentence.

READING, August 18.—Adam M. Dundour, the defaulting ex-county treasurer, pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with embezzling the state funds. The sentence was as follows: That the prisoner be sentenced to 3 years separate and solitary confinment at hard labor in the Berks county jail; that he pay the cost of prosecution; that he make restitution of $19,000 stolen, and that he stan committed until the sentence is complied with. The other score or so of indictments were laid over for subsequent action.

The Cumberland Coal Region.

CUMBERLAND, Md., August 18.—At a meeting of the George's Creek coal and iron company's old miners this afternoon seventy five of the strikers, who desire to be furnished with tools to resume work, handed in their names to the mine superintendent. They were accepted and told to report for duty in the morning. During to day the strikers persuaded thirty men of the New Central company's batch of new laborers who were taken to their barracks at Lonaconing this morning to leave. This reduces the number at the barracks this evening to about ten or fifteen men.

Outrages by Apaches.

TUCSON, Arizona, Aug. 18.—Dispatches from Trinidad, Arizona, report that a band of two hundred Apaches are committing frightful atrocities. At Elleonniel eleven women and a child were killed. The woman were first unstripped and outraged and then put to death by the most cruel torture. Ten men are reported killed in different places. The citizens have armed and gone in pursuit. A force of Mexicans are after them.

Fatally Injured.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., August 20—Eli Gates, colored, to-day struck Peter Peterson, also colored, on the head with a baseball bat, crushing his skull. Peterson had been paying his addresses to Gates' daughter and been forbidden the house by Gates. Peterson calling at the house this morning led to the attack with the above result. It is thought that Peterson cannot recover. Gates was arrested.

An Appeal for Aid.

WASHINGTON, D. C. August 18.—The mayor of Brownsville, Texas, has applied to the government for relief for the unemployed and destitute people of that place. The quarrantining of that city by all the ports of Texas has thrown a large portion of the working population out of employment. A reply was sent to the effect that the request for aid must come from the governor of the state.

Success Assured.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., August 18.—William Gowland, of Pittsburgh, addressed a large audience of miners in this city to-night. He made an appeal to them, asking all to take an active part in soliciting aid for the western miners now on a strike. He was assured that his mission would meet with success.

Railroad Accident.

PHILADELPHIA, August 20.—An extra freight on the Pennsylvania railroad ran into another freight train near Bristol at an early hour this morning. Ten cars and the engine were badly damaged. Three men were seriously and two slightly injured.

Dorsey to Garfield.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The Gazette to-day publishes portions of two more letters from Dorsey to Garfield. The Gazette gives as a reason for publishing the letters that it desires to aid Dorsey, whom it claims to have been greatly abused and wants to bring to light the curious political history of the republican party for the past twenty years. The letters urge upon President Garfield the appointment of Judge Folger for secretary of the treasury and denounces Blaine as having too much to say to the administration. Dorsey says he had conferred with General Arthur and that gentleman had informed him that Blaine was provoked at his (Dorsey's) interference in Folger's behalf. Dorsey warns Garfield that neither Blaine nor any other ambitious man should have control of the great places in his cabinet.

Knights of Pythias.

HARRISBURG, August 16.—The grand lodge of Pennsylvania Knights of Pythias met in the senate chamber on Tuesday and was welcomed by Governor Hoyt, who referred to the tenets of the order and the good it has accomplished. Concerning the membership the following statistics are presented: Number of past chancellors, 5,691; number of knights, 2,584; number of esquires, 130; number of pages, 160; total, 31,794. Number of members June 30, 1881, 29,309; increased during the year, 3,385. The committee on elections reported the following officers for the ensuing year: Grand chancellor, H. O. Kline, of Altoona, No. 436, Bedford; grand vice chancellor, Austin Long, No. 8, Philadelphia; grand prelate, John H. Carr, No. 79, Altoona; grand keeper of records and seal, George Hawkes, No. 126, Philadelphia; grand master of exchequer, Julius Mountney, No. 166, Philadelphia; grand master at arms, Edward V. O'Neill, No. 31, Philadelphia.

England Occupies Port Said.

LONDON, August 20.—The eastern telegraph company announces that Port Said was occupied at 3 o'clock this morning by the English forces. At 2.30 o'clock this afternoon earth works had been thrown up between the European and Arab quarters of the town. Seventeen transports and five men of war are at Port Said and Admiral Seymour and General Sir Garnet Wolsely are both there this morning. Tsmailaia also was occupied by the British and the rebel troops were driven from Nefich. The British have possession of the telegraph line from Port Said to Suez.

Wants to Go to Work.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Alexander Kenady, president of the federation of labor unions, has addressed a communication to the chiefs of the various labor organizations, in which he suggests that all workmen now on a strike should return to work and await the result of the congressional inquiry into the labor question now progressing. He says that if congress at its next sessions does not bring some relief to the working classes a national strike could be inaugurated within thirty days which would be very effective.

Ordered not to Go to Work.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 20.—During Saturday night the Knights of Labor posted printed bills throughout the town of Lonaconing warning miners not to go to work on Monday morning without orders from this organization, as otherwise they will be branded as black legs. This warning will, it is thought, change the situation as the men of the George Creek coal and iron company and the New Central company, who handed in their names for tools on Friday and Saturday say they are determined to go in to-morrow.

Two Men Killed.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 20.—A passenger train ran into a wagon last night near Catasaqua instantly killing John Steward, injuring Willoughby Sieger so badly that he died shortly after and slightly injuring Jacob Stockenberger, all of whom were on the wagon. Sieger leaves a wife and three children and Stewart a wife and four children. Coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Cannot Accept.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—A dispatch from Constantinople to Reuters telegram company says that Lord Dufferin in an interview to-day with Said Pasha declared that he was unable to accept the Turkish proposal for a military convention even in their new form. Said Pasha and Assym Pasha are understood to be strongly in favor of an understanding with England.

Senator Hill.

ATLANTA, August 19.—The remains of Senator Hill were buried at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The escort consisted of the Atlanta bar and the senatorial committee. There was a long line of carriages and fully twenty thousand people assembled on the streets to see the procession.

"Erastus," said a Halsted-street woman to her son, "it's time to get ready for school." "What time is it?" languidly inquired the youth." "Half-past eight." "That all? Shucks! I've seen it later." "Erastus, I'll tell your father if you don't come right into the house this minute." "All right, you tell him. You just go right off and tell him, and I'll tell him you are watching his cavorting around the hired girl, and give him a pointer. You just let me alone, and go on a still hunt after the governor or I'll flush the covey myself."

Prohibition.

To the Editor of the REPUBLICAN:

SIR: From the report given in the Republican of the convention of the Constitutional Amendment Association in this county, I observe that the temperance cause has again been wounded in the house of its friends, and for another year in Centre county must go limping along as the laughing-stock of politicians, the butt of their ridicule and contempt.

From the beginning I have had sincere doubts in regard to the necessity of this Association, and must confess that the action of this convention, in refusing to adopt a resolution offered to the effect that members should refuse to support or vote for any candidates to the Senate or House of Representatives who will not pledge themselves to support a prohibitory amendment, has greatly intensified my doubts.

While I believe there are good and true men in the Association, honestly working for the temperance reform, I am also strongly inclined to the opinion that they are the dupes of intriguing politicians, who have adopted this plan, not because of their love for temperance, but simply to retain the temperance vote in the old parties.

Just before every election the old politicians set a snare for our feet, and with the innocence of the dove we walk into it, and our votes are gobbled up by the old parties.

To the innocence of the dove it is time we should add the wisdom of the serpent. All that this Association has accomplished through its convention in our county has been to advertise the humiliating fact that the temperance men of Centre county have not sufficient moral stamina to say to the candidates for office, "Gentlemen, if your are unwilling to pledge yourselves in favor of prohibition of the liquor traffic, then you can't have our votes."

It is difficult to conceive how this convention could have done anything that would have been so entirely satisfactory to the politicians and liquor dealers as to refuse to pass a resolution of this kind. While politicians and saloon men have not as a rule a surplus of morals, they are by no means devoid of common sense. They know full well that nothing will so successfully and thoroughly damn any organization as to preach one thing and practice the exact opposite. Hence they are perfectly willing, yes, anxious, to have temperance men stultify themselves by meeting in convention and talking, preaching and praying temperance, and then separate with the understanding that they will go to the polls and cast their ballots for the very men who have not only refused to give any pledge in favor of prohibition, but in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred are pledged in support of the liquor traffic. A cause which can survive such gross inconsistency on the part of its advocates must have a wonderful amount of vitality.

Just here this query suggests itself to my mind and I desire to submit it for the consideration of the members of the Constitutional Amendment Association: Why is it that the liquor traffic as an element of political power is almost irresistible, while the temperance reform as a political factor is a mere cipher?

The facts embodied in this question are the exact opposite of what we would expect if we look at the subject from the standpoint of merit. The liquor traffic, from this standpoint, is evil, and only evil, and that in mammoth proportions. It is the cruel, relentless destroyer of individual, social, national and religious life, liberty and happiness. It inervates the body, corrupts the heart, impairs the intellect, and destroys soul and body for time and eternity. There is not one single item that it contributes to good; while the curses it inflicts upon humanity are numbered by the thousands.

Hence it should not be powerless as a political factor, but its very name should be odious and repulsive to every true patriot.

Nevertheless it is a fact patent to the most superficial observer that the politics of our State and Nation have been to a great extent under the control of the liquor traffic.

On the other hand the temperance reform, when reviewed from the standpoint of merit, is good, and only good, and that in mammoth proportions. It contributes to the health, the wealth, the happiness, the morality, the purity and intelligence of the community. Its whole tendency is to cloth our humanity in the garments of beauty, purity and intelligence and exalt us to a higher plan of thought and action. Hence it ought to be a magic, resistless power in the politics of our nation; but instead of this it has been like a child in the coils of a serpent.

Now this inquiry forces itself upon us. Why are the facts embodied in the question I have just propounded the exact opposite of what we would naturally expect if we look at the subject from the standpoint of merit? Why is the liquor traffic, which is evil and only evil, which is without a single redeeming feature, and which contributes only to corruption, debauchery, ignorance and crime; why is this ungodly traffic a hundred fold more powerful in the politics of our nation than the temperance element?

In my judgment one great secret of the vast power of the liquor traffic in the politics of our country is this: The adherents of the traffic love the traffic more than they love any party. Hence, whenever the time comes that they must choose between their traffic and their party, that they must abandon the one or the other, they don't hesitate a moment, they stand by their traffic every time. As an illustration of this statement I need only refer to the resolution passed by the County, State and National conventions of the brewers and distillers of our county. At the late national convention of brewers, which met in Washington City, they passed the most emphatic resolutions, pledging themselves not to vote for any man, no difference what his politics might be, unless he would promise his influence in the interest of their traffic.

I ask the members of the Constitutional Amendment Convention to note the contrast between the action of this convention and that of the brewers. In the action of the brewers we have the element of consistency. They vote as they talk. Hence when the liquor party sends their committees to our State and National legislatures, making demands in the interest of their traffic, the members of these honorable bodies know precisely what these petitions mean, they know that they mean business, and that if their petitions are not granted then all the influence, all the wealth and all the votes of the liquor element will be directly against the party denying their petitions. Hence politicians count the cost, and almost universally grant their petitions.

Now on the other hand what is the occasion of the imbecility, the childlike weakness of the temperance element in our State and National politics? The answer to this inquiry is to be found, I think, in this humiliating fact, viz: The advocates of the temperance reform love the temperance cause less than they love their party. The action of the late temperance convention held in Bellefonte is a striking illustration of this statement. Hence when the temperance advocates send their petitions to the National legislature, our representatives in congress assembled, know full well that they can treat these petitions not only with indifference but even with contempt and ridicule, and still their petitioners will go right to the polls and cast their ballots in favor of the party which has trampled upon their rights.

It is time temperance men would have at least as much energy as a worm and squirm when trampled upon. As long as we are silly enough talk, preach and pray temperance and then go to the polls and vote for the very men who have repeatedly kicked us out of their conventions, and speak of us only with contempt and ridicule, we don't deserve to succeed. We are worthy of no higher position than that of a laughing-stock for scoffing politicians. I hope the time is not far distant when temperance men will cease to act as children, and assert their manhood and stand by their principles, and no longer talk one way and vote in a directly opposite way.

The great need of the temperance cause to-day is men, representative men; men, who like that old reformer Martin Luther, prefer to stand alone on God's truth rather than on the Devil's lie with all the world for company. Men like Dow, of Maine, or St. John, of Kansas, who in the spirit of true manhood, have the courage to say to their constituents: "I am a prohibitionist, and will accept of no office in the gift of the nation upon any other platform."

—It is said that the real name of Miles McPadden, the labor agitator, is Miles P. Early.

—The supply of fine, cultivated blackberries, which has been offered at market for several weeks past, is about exhausted.

—It should be kept before the public that Harry Green's cigars are the best and have the largest sale of any in the market.

—To secure the most desirable curve for a hammock the head end should always be two and a-half feet higher than the foot end, whatever the height from the ground.

—Perhaps no item of a family's expenses is higher then that for groceries, therefore the fact that money can be saved by buying of Harry Teats & Co is pleasant news.

—The Huntingdon printers and a nine from the Altoona Tribune will play a game of base ball on the fair ground in this place on the day of the printers' picnic—September 1st.

—General Beaver arrived in town on Friday to remain until Monday or Tuesday of this week. His health was never better and he is splendidly prepared for the work of the campaign.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad has provided each engineer with the facilities for giving temporary relief in case of accident. Each box contains a paper of pins, needles, gum band, bandages, etc.

—We are informed that the receipts of the recent Roman Catholic picnic were $500. The expenses were comparatively slight, which will leave a very handsome figure as a result of the day's recreation and pleasure.

—There may be things that are "brand new" and things that are contraband; one man has also been known to brand another as a falsifier, but the brand of cigars sold by Harry Green is what takes the cake every time.

—Vennor predicts one more hot wave and says that the warm season will then be over; but it strikes us that this does not agree with another prediction of his that September will be more like summer than any other month of the year.

A Brave Boalsburg Girl.

The most notable snake story which has come to our knowledge this summer is based on a thrilling adventure with the much-dreaded reptiles in which a 15-year-old daughter of Mr. S. F. Mayes, of Boalsburg, was the heroine. She wandered into the woods one day recently, as was her custom, to enjoy nature in her wildest and most picturesque moods. Frequently in her rambles the young lady meets with more or less dangerous specimens of the snake species, but thinks nothing of dispatching them with a stick or stone. At the time she was about three miles from Boalsburg when she came upon a nest of snakes from which issued countless numbers of the crawling animals, some of which showed fight. Many young girls would have screamed and fled precipitately from the scene, but not so with Miss Mayes. She made an aggressive warfare, and with the rude implements at hand for the purpose, she dealt death-blows on her numerous enemies and in half an hour thirty-three snakes lay dead at her feet, the rest all having escaped. If many young ladies of the present day were endowed with Miss Mayes' bravery snakes would soon become less numerous.

—A duelist is on trial in Lunenburg, Va. He is one of the many inhabitants of the Old Dominion who thought they could make targets of one another with perfect impunity. He did so and killed his victim. His name is Garland and the victim of his murderous bullet was named Addison. There is a possibility that Garland will be presented with a garland by his fellow citizens. It will not be composed of choice flowers, however, but of hemp rope and will fit closely around his neck. This will be an excellent means of teaching the Virginians that the code is not necessary in this enlightened age to establish the honor of a gentleman; they are not expected to let their passions rise to an extent that demands the sacrifice of life; but whether highly incensed or in a tranquil state of mind they should glide quietly away to Sechler's grocery store in the Bush House block for an abundant supply of the fresh groceries which are always kept in that famous establishment. The consumption of these will induce him to be at peace with his enemies, and ere another day shall end the two will probably shake hands and again go to the same store to purchase a sufficient quantity for all their relations and friends.

The Late Mrs. Daniel Riley.

It was our sad duty about two weeks ago to record the death, at Boalsburg, of the venerable lady whose name heads this announcement. In referring to it again we desire to correct our statement of the disease which caused her death. It was not consumption. The two physicians who attended her during her last illness decided that her death was caused by a tumor which formed on one of the delicate internal organs. She was sick for eight weeks, during which she suffered severe pain. She was one of the most patient sufferers, and longed to go to that home not made with hands. As a consistent Christian, her character and life formed a beautiful example, worthy of the closest imitation. She was one of the oldest members of Dr. Hamill's church at Lemont, and passed away amid the consoling influences of religion. It was also a comfort that, in her last hours, all of her children, except her son William, of Chicago, were gathered at her bedside.

—We hope our readers will be able to endure the present warm weather, and will find it convenient to visit Sechler's store whenever they are in quest of groceries.

—Preparations for celebrating the bi-centennial anniversary of the landing of William Penn, at Philadelphia, in October, are assuming immense proportions. On the first or civic day, it is expected that at least fifty thousand men of all branches of industry, with tools, machinery, etc., will be on the platform, including Welsh and German societies from all parts of the Union. On October 27th 10,000 soldiers of the state, and visiting associations, together with 10,000 members of the G. A. R., will take part in a grand military pageant.

—The thermometer has not registered very high at any time this summer, but fully high enough to justify all persons in purchasing groceries of Harry Teats & Co.

—Watermelons are growing in favor on account of their medicinal properties. Of course it is possible to eat too much of a good thing, but watermelon discreetly indulged in is wholesome and a perfect as well as agreeable remedy for various summer complaints.

—The apple crop in some parts of the country is pronounced a failure.

How to Water in a Drouth.

In the summer drouths which now and then occur, it is common to see persons everywhere at work watering their gardens, to keep things alive till the regular rain comes. It is, however, the experience of all that the more the garden is watered the more it wants, and thus, on the whole, it does little good. Yet water can be so given as to be free from this objection. It is the hardening of the surface which causes the evil, and a hard compact surface always dries out faster than a loose one. The proper way for a few inches around the plant to be watered is to make a sort of a basin and into this pour the water, letting it soak gradually away. After it has disappeared and the surface gets a little dry, then draw the earth back again which has been displaced to make a basin. This will make a loose surface over the watered part, which will preserve it from drying out quickly. Tomotoes, egg plants, cabbages, and other plants of this character watered this way will need no renewal of water for several weeks. It is a slow way of getting such work done, but the only sure way.—Ex.

—Cut this out and paste it in your hat: "The next time I visit Bellefonte I shall buy some groceries of Harry Teats & Co."

—The checker players at Garman's hotel were somewhat surprised on Friday. There are four or five of them, among whom are Rev. Keller, D. G. Bush, Esq., and Al. Garman, who play with almost equal skill, with Rev. Keller slightly in the lead. On Friday Mr. Jack Agar, of Lock Haven, consented to play a game with Rev. Keller and won easily. He played again and again, until the morning was almost gone, and won every game, to the surprise of the veteran players there assembled. If Rev. Keller ate any dinner the quantity was very slight, for he resumed the game with Mr. Agar after a brief intermission and played until late in the evening, declaring that Mr. Agar is the only man he ever met from whom he could not occasionally win a game.

—"Read, ponder and digest." A parent who deplores the growing use of tobacco among the boys desires us to publish one of the many reasons given by the Surgeon General of the United States Army for the prohibition of tobacco in the National Military and Naval Academies. The gentleman declares: "Before all other things, the future health and usefulness of the lads educated in the military schools requires the absolute interdiction of tobacco." Who does not desire the health and usefulness of the lads of Bellefonte? Practically not those who encourage our lads to use tobacco. And what shall be said of clergymen who publicly set the example which about every boy is eager to follow?

A Testimonial from a High Authority.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., April 28, '82.

It affords me pleasure to testify to the personal worth and educational qualifications of Mr. S. T. Stephenson, who has been a teacher in one of our city schools for the last three years. As a teacher he was distinguished for integrity and a conscientious discharge of every duty. His personal character is above reproach. I earnestly commend him to those to whom he may offer his services as an instructor.

Killed By a Tombstone.

Monday evening's edition (August 14) of the Williamsport G. & B., records a sad accident which occured in that city as follows:

The little son of J. F. Grieninger, sexton at Williamsport cemetery, Washington street, was instantly killed about 9 o'clock this morning. The father was working about one of the lots, his wife and there little child being close by looking on. Mr. Grieninger placed his hand against a large head stone to straighten it up, when the stone broke off suddenly, even with the ground, and fell over in the direction of his wife and child, the corner striking the little boy in the forehead, killing him instantly. His head and face were crushed in, extending from the right side of his forehead downward to the left. His death was without a struggle or cry. The body was quickly removed to the residence of the parents, 203 Washington street, opposite the cemetery, where it was prepared for burial. The parents are naturally, overwhelmed with grief at the shocking death of little Charles Elmer, their only child. He was a bright, interesting boy, although only seventeen month old. The body has been placed in ice, and the funeral will take place from the residence at 2 p. m. on Wednesday. The deeply afflicted father and mother have the tenderest sympathy of all who known them in this trying hour.

—According to an English contributor to Bradstreet's, the wealth of the United States now exceeds that of either Great Britain or France, but the average wealth per capita is less than in those countries. The wealth of the United States is $49,800,000,000, or $990 per capita; of Great Britain, $44,100,000,000, which is $1,260 per head; France, $37,200,000,000, or $1,045 per capita. In 1840 Great Britain's wealth was five times as great as ours. The rapid growth of the wealth of the United States is probably attributable, in a great measure, to the existence of such stores as that of Sechler & Co., grocers, in the Bush House block. It contributes to the wealth of a people by selling them the best goods for the least money, by adding to their health and general prosperity. It is well known that "health is wealth," and the pure, wholesome groceries purchased at Sechler's store are an important factor in its proper preservation.

IN SPITE of the lament of Dion Boucicault over the degradation of the profession, Mrs. Langtry has made a hit in the English provinces and will now make a short season in London before coming to America. Her first twelve weeks' work brought her in very nearly forty-four thousand dollars clear. The "coach" to whom Mr. Boucicault so vigorously objects was Mrs. Labouchere, wife of the editor of Truth, and herself an actress of great good taste. Her stage name was Harriet Hodson, and it was very largely on her advice and on that of her husband that the Jersey Lily took to the boards for a living. It has been reported that Mrs. Labouchere, whose social tact and judgment in professional matters are alike conspicuous, would come with Mrs. Langtry to America, but the matter is as yet undecided.

—The village of Lemont was the scene of quite an extensive fire on Sunday morning about one o'clock. Flames were observed issuing from the building owned by Mrs. Margaret Whitehill and occupied by J. W. Hartswick as a general merchandise store. They burned fiercely and strenuous efforts were only sufficient to remove a small quantity of the goods, the larger portion being consumed. The building was insured in the Pennsvalley Company for $450. An insurance of $600 existed on the goods, in what company we are not informed. The origin of the fire is not known.

—The third annual meeting of the Panxsutawney Agricultural Society and Driving Park Association will be held on the Association's grounds on September 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th. We acknowledge an invitation to attend and are glad to see the evidences of the Association's prosperity in the handsome aggregate of the purses offered for trials of speed—$2,400. The Free to All purse is $1,000, which is a strong inducement for the entry of horses from a distance. Joseph Shields is president of the Association and W. P. Hastings, secretary.

NEWS from Nebraska leaves little doubt that the people of that state are ready to take up the prohibition experiment, and are arranging a vigorous prohibition campaign. The liquor men, while conceding that an amendment would be adopted readily if submitted to the people, hope to best the measure in the legislature, as they have already done, and they have the support of most of the daily newspapers.

—Voters have until the 5th day of September to register. They should, however, attend to the matter at once.

WHERE TO LEARN MUSIC

The Pittsburg Conservatory—100 Full Music Lessons for Eighteen Dollars.

The Pittsburg Conservatory of Music, organized in 1874, in connection with the Pittsburg Female College, has been remarkably successful. The charges are scarcely one-third—in some cases less than one-fourth those of Boston and New York. Pupils have all the advantages of hearing concerts and oratorios by the first artists of the times, an advantage afforded in large cities only. Those who desire a thorough course in music, under the most favorable circumstances, and at the most reasonable rates, will do well to send for a catalogue to Rev. I. C. Pershing, D. D., Pittsburg, Pa.

A TREASURY official with a statistical turn of mind has been making a calculation, according to which it appears that the revenue of the United States during the current fiscal year will amount to something like four hundred and fifty million dollars. When the Congressmen who passed the notorious River and Harbor bill over the President's veto hear of that they will feel tempted to regret their moderation. In spite of all their efforts to dissipate the anticipated surplus, they have only provided for the expenditure of about two hundred and ninety-four million dollars. That, it is true, is nearly eighty million dollars more than was appropriated last year, but the surplus is still far ahead.

—Altoona, Tyrone and Lock Haven are all in a condition of semi-anarchy, a party of roughs in each place occasionally taking possession of municipal affairs and running things to suit themselves. Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggists for it. Each bottle is warranted. Smith, Kline & Co., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and C. N. Crittenton, New York. 14 24 1y

Announcements.

E. T. TUTEN, EDITOR REPUBLICAN.—Please announce my name as a candidate for member of the Legislature, subject to the decision of the Republican County Convention.
Boggs tp., Aug. 14, 1882. E. I. WALKER.

COURT PROCLAMATION.—Whereas, the Hon. Charles A. Mayer, President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the 25th judicial district, consisting of the Counties of Centre, Clinton and Clearfield, and the Hon. J. G. Larimer and the Hon. J. K. Runkle, Associate Judges in Centre county, having issued their precept, bearing date the 16th day of May, A. D., 1882, to me directed, for holding a court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery and Quarter Sessions of the peace in Bellefonte, for the County of Centre, and to commence on the fourth Monday of August next, being the 28th day of August, 1882, and to continue one week. Notice is hereby given to the Coroner, Justices of the Peace, Aldermen and Constables of said County of Centre, that they be then and there in their proper persons, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, with their records, inquisitions, examinations, and their own remembrances, to do those things which to their office appertains to be done, and those who are bound in recognizances to prosecute against the prisoners that are or shall be in the jail of Centre county, be then and there to prosecute against them as shall be just.

Given under my hand, at Bellefonte, the 2nd day of August, in the year of our Lord, 1882, and in the one hundred and sixth year of the independence of the United States.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Death's Doings.

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 14.—George Washington Harris, the oldest resident-born citizen of Harrisburg, died suddenly on Sunday morning about 1 o'clock, at his residence on South Second street. Mr. Harris was born June 23, 1788, in the old ferry house, now the location of Harris Park school house. He was a son of Robert Harris, who was a son of John Harris, the founder of the city of Harrisburg, and grandson of John Harris, the first settler. His mother was Elizabeth Ewing, daughter of the celebrated Rev. John Ewing, D. D., provost of the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Harris' early education was received at the old Harrisburg academy, and the select school of the day. Subsequently he went to Dickinson, Jefferson and the University of Pennsylvania, graduating at the latter institution. He studied law, and was admitted to the Dauphin county bar in 1820. He remained at Harrisburg several years, during a portion of which period he served as deputy attorney general for the county of Dauphin. He afterwards removed to Philadelphia and entered into law partnership with Calvin Blaythe, a celebrated lawyer and jurist. He returned to Harrisburg and resumed his place at the Dauphin county bar, and was appointed register of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, publishing a number of volumes of reports.

An Archbishop Commits Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., August 14.—The Alaska commercial steamer, which arrived here to-day from St. Michaels brings intelligence of the death, undoubtedly suicidal, of Archbishop Nestor, of the Russian church. The reverend gentleman, who had charge of the diocese of Alaska, took passage on the St. Paul for this city, which was his permanent place of residence. He was missed shortly after leaving St. Michaels and circumstances clearly indicated that he had jumped overboard. He had been troubled for some time past with rush of blood to the head, and had appeared at times not quite of sound mind. He was 56 years old.

Senator Hill.

WASHINGTON, August 14.—A telegram from Senator Brown was received at the capitol to-day announcing that Senator Ben Hill would probably not live through the day and requesting that senators and representatives in Washington be communicated with, so that those who desire may be present to attend the funeral. Sergeant at Arms Bright, to whom the dispatch was addressed, is in New York, but one of his assistants will convey the information to the congressmen now in the city.

A Secret Meeting Held.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., August 14.—A secret meeting was held this afternoon between the striking driving boys and Chas. Parrish & Co. They have refused to furnish any information to the press. It is rumored at the mines that Charles Parrish refused to make any compromise with them while on a strike. Should they return to work he will pay them the same wages and allow them the same time as any other colliery is now doing in this county. The drivers will meet in secret session to-night.

Refuse to Insure.

LANCASTER, Pa., August 14.—The fire insurance agents doing business in this city gave notice in the evening papers that "under instructions from the companies represented by them they will issue no more polices and cancel those now in existence on property in this city, unless vigorous efforts are made by the authorities to suppress the prevalent incendiarism." An investigation shows that there was no insurance on the asylum building burned on Sunday.

A Railway Collision.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, August 14.—A special from Hilger's Crossing says a collision occurred near there yesterday between a passenger and a freight train. Many passengers were more or less seriously injured, and Miss Josie Carr was pushed from the caboose by some excited person and was run over and killed.

A Desperado Injured.

INDIANA, Pa., August 14.—Duke Ray, a desperado, after raiding two houses this afternoon, was pursued by the sheriff and a large posse. When brought to bay he flourished a huge butcher knife and only surrendered when three bullets were fired into his body. He is now in jail seriously injured.

An Empress Injured.

BERLIN, August 14.—The empress is confined to her apartments in consequence of the injuries which she received by a fall while walking in the schlass of Babelsberg on Saturday. Some anxiety is felt concerning her condition.

Quick Time.

QUEENSTOWN, August 15.—The steamer Alaska, from New York, arrived this evening, having made the voyage in six days and twenty-three hours.

The War in Egypt.

LONDON, August 15, 6 p. m.—A dispatch just received, dated Alexandria 6.30 o'clock this afternoon, says: "The transport Calabria, with General Sir Garnet Wolsely and the Household cavalry on board, has just arrived here. All on board are well."

A dispatch to the Central News from Alexandria states that the sultan to day peremptorily ordered Arabi Pasha to lay down his arms. If he refuses the sultan will leave him to be dealt with by the Euglisn. Two regiments of Highlanders, the Derbyshire regiment, and the Horse Guards are just about to march through the city. The steamer Catalonia with the West Kent regiment has arrived here.

ALEXANDRIA, August 15.—On account of a report that regulars as well as Bedouins were in the neighborhood of Mex, Major General Alison has reinforced the British post by a detachment of Highlanders and some marine artillery.

Colonel Gerard, of the mounted infantry, rode before daybreak today on a reconnoissance to within half a mile of the enemy's second line. The reconnoitering party was pursued by horsemen, of whom it succeeded in killing several. Colonel Gerard states that he accomplished the object of his reconnoissance.

A Gang of Thieves.

BALTIMORE, Md., August 15.—Several days ago the marshal of police of this city received a telegraphi request from Ashland, Pa., to look out for a lot of goods which had been stolen in that place and shipped by express to Baltimore. The express office was watched and a man named J. E. Carpenter appeared and presented a receipt for the goods. He was taken into custody and shortly after S. F. Berg called and made inquiry for the same goods. He too was arrested and their victims in Ashland were notified. They reached Baltimore to-day with a requisition for the prisoners and about six hundred dollars worth of the goods recovered were identified. The owners of the goods from Ashland are Henry S. Constien, Bernhard Knoblauch and Mrs. Henrietta Retz. The operations of the accused extended to Sunbury, Williamsport and Reading. To-day the friends of Carpenter sued out a writ of habeas corpus, which was made returnable at noon to-morrow. The parties are both well known in this city and were recently engaged in keeping a drinking saloon near the city hall. Both of the accused have been identified by the people from Ashland.

Another Chicago Tragedy.

CHICAGO, August 15.—The facts connected with a shooting affray which occurred early on Monday morning have just been learned. Gust Hageman found John Boyle in company with his sweetheart, a domestic on Ashland avenue. A quarrel ensued, and Boyle ran to his boarding house and got a double barreled shot-gun loaded with nails, pieces of iron and slugs and returned and threatened to shoot Hageman. The latter knocked Boyle down, took the gun away from him, pursued him half a block and discharged the contents of both barrels into his side. The doctor picked forty-five pieces of nails and lead out of the ghastly wound. Boyle cannot live. Hageman escaped.

Twenty-two Indictments.

READING, Pa., August 15.—Twenty-two bills of indictment against Adam Dundor, the defaulting county treasurer, were found by the Berks county grand jury to-day. The bills charge him among other things with embezzlement, forgery, perjury and making false entries. He is also indicted for conspiracy to defraud in connection with ex-Clerk of Quarter Sessions Mathies. The cases are set down for trial on Thursday.

Resignations Accepted.

NEW YORK, August 15.—United States District Attorney Woodford this afternoon accepted the resignations of John P. Clark, Alfred R. Conkling, nephew of the senator, G. E. P. Howard and Charles P. James, a son of ex-Postmaster General James, assistant United States district attorneys. This became necessary in view of a reduction to the congressional appropriation for the department of justice.

A Sale Under Difficulties.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 15.—The Sprague farm and mansion at Canonchet were sold at auction to-day by order of Trustee Chaffee for $62,250 to Frank D. Moulton, of New York. William Sprague had partially torn down the bridge leading to the place and patrolled the avenue leading to the house armed with a rifle. The auctioneer stood on the wreck of the bridge to complete the sale.

A Tornado in Maine.

BANGOR, Me., August 15.—The most destructive tornado ever experienced in this vicinity visited Bangor this evening. The wind blew with terrific violence and the rain fell in sheets, converting the streets into roaring streams, the whole accompanied by incessant thunder and lightning. The destruction of property is very great and will amount to between $50,000 and $100,000.

Rioters Fatally Injured.

PITTSBURGH, August 15.—A special dispatch from Greensburg, Pa., says: "George Lunnan, Duke and Clayt Palmer and a man named Moore engaged in a riot at Latrobe to-day which resulted in two of the men receiving injuries which will prove fatal."

The Sunday-School Assembly.

ASBURY PARK, August 15.—To-day closed this important gathering of Sunday-school workers. Principal McVicar, LL. D., President of the Presbyterian College of Montreal, gave a well-considered paper on moral culture. He gave an outline of the culture of the senses, physical and mental, and then advanced to his theme, Moral Culture. He was not here to present the claims of rival systems. Society is not founded on mathematics, science or scholarship; but upon the higher conditions of the moral being. He held the closest attention. Anthony Comstock followed, presenting his methods of counteracting bad reading in a clear and terse statement of facts, and what is needed as a remedy. A number of questions were asked, elicting facts relating to an effort to repeal in Congress certain restrictive laws. In the afternoon Rev. Dr. Blackburn continued his Bible history, taking from the Christian era down. he gave the location of the three great races—the Hamites, settling in Africa, Semites in Arabia, the Japhethic, or Aryans, in Asia Minor and Europe. The latter great nation subsequently divided into Germanic, Slavonic, etc., while the Hamites showed the need of the Bible and the Semites received revelation. The descendants of Japheth were the disseminators of Christianity. The closing exercises took place in the evening. Farewell speeches were made by Dr. Hodge and others. The grand chorus choir rendered a number of choice selections. The Assembly of 1882 has been a success in every particular.

The Bankers' Convention.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 15.—A considerable number of delegates have already arrived here to attend the third annual convention of the American Bankers' Association which meets to-morrow. Efforts have been made to make this the most successful meeting yet held. Reports from a good share of the 7,136 banks in the United States show that business generally is in a good condition and that no immediate danger threatens financial and industrial interests. There has been an increase of 200 banks since the last annual meeting. Bankers from the South and West talk hopefully and predict a good business year. The programme of the convention, which will sit two days, embraces a number of interesting discussions, and the reading of papers by Professor L. H. Atwater, of Pinceton; John Thompson, of New York; A. D. Lynch, of Indiana; J. D. Vermilye, William Dowd, F. D. Tappen, William Grosvenor, Stewart L. Woodford, and others of New York; W. H. Perkins, of Mississippi, and representatives of Philadelphia and other banking centres. Aristachi Bey, the Turkish Minister, is down on the programme for a paper on Turkish finances, a very intricate subject. In addition to the regular work of the convention there will be excursions and festivities to deplete the pockets of financiers.

Arrested for Robbery.

KANSAS City, Mo., August 15.—Dick Little, a member of the old James gang, was arrested here to-day at noon by a United States Marshal, charged with complicity in the robbery of the United States paymaster at Mussle Shoals, Ala., March 11, 1881. The amount taken was $5,200, and it is supposed the robbery was perpetrated by Jesse James, William Ryan, who is now serving a twenty-five years' sentence for train robbery, and Dick Little. Little says he is innocent and can also prove that the arrest is the work of the surviving members of the James gang, who have a grudge against him for the information he gave the officers which led to the breaking up of the gang.

Nominations Made.

WILLIAMSPORT, August 15.—The democratic county committee met this afternoon and made the following nominations: Congress, Hon. J. J. Metzger; state senator, W. W. Hart; assemblymen, Thomas F. Gahan, D. F. Deitrick, D. B. Waltz; jury commissioner, Peter Elwert. Mr. Metzger declined the nomination for congress and two conferees were appointed.

A Postmaster for Utica.

WASHINGTON, August 15.—Acting Postmaster General Hatton to-day appointed Judson T. Stevens postmaster at Utica, N. Y. The nomination of Stevens caused considerable controversy in the senate and was left unacted upon when congress adjourned sine die. The former postmaster at Utica has been suspended.

Senator Hoar Explains.

WORCESTER, Mass., August 15.—Senator Hoar has written a letter to the people of Massachusetts in which he at considerable length gives his reasons for voting for the river and harbor bill.

OTHER'S MISFORTUNES.—A French wit has said: "We are all strong enough to bear the misfortunes of others." A kindred sentiment is found in Artemus Ward's willingness to sacrifice all his second cousins in the late war. But why endure the misfortunes of others? Why see others sacrificed to the Moloch of diseased kidneys or liver, broken down in health, weak, wasted, hastening to the grave, when we know that Hunt's Remedy is just the specific that will make a perfect cure? That man with weak back, sore loins, distressed feeling, lost energy, has disease of the kidneys, and Hunt's Remedy is just what he needs. Let him not be sacrificed, but tell him the good news of this wonderful medicine.

Special Telegram.

CAIRO, N. Isaac Hoffman and Frank Rennie have also been cured of sick headache and dyspepsia by their use. Westel Salsbury says they have been used by himself and family to great advantage; have cured his daughter of sick headache. The Bitters seem to be just the thing for the diseases for which they are recommended. E. C. STEVENS.

—Mrs. Smith, wife of Sheriff Smith, of Lock Haven recently attempted to aid in moving a woman who was confined in the jail, from one cell into another. The enraged prisoner kicked Mrs. Smith once and struck her several times with her clenched fist. As a result of this treatment, Mrs. Smith sustained an internal hemorrhage and is now in a critical condition.

A Man with Four Wives.

James L. Sinclair is a handsome machinist of Philadelphia. He has worked in different parts of the State, and in the course of his wanderings married four times, all of his wives being yet alive and until recently were ignorant of each other's existence. Among the number was Miss Annie M. Heisler, of Altoona. The real truth was discovered a few days ago, and the much-married man arrested. The following was made public at the hearing on Tuesday afternoon:

Sinclair, when arraigned, gave his age as 28 and his trade that of a machinist, and Lawyer Flaherty then produced the first evidence against him in the form of the only real Mrs. Sinclair's marriage certificate. This stated that on January 18, 1872, he had been married at Reading to Carrie Caffer, by Rev. R. M. Schmucker, pastor of St. James' Lutheran church. The next witness was Ettie Coyle, or Mrs. Sinclair, No. 3, who gave her evidence clearly and calmly. Ettie gave her address as No. 1751 Juniata street, Nicetown, and in answer to Mr. Flaherty's question, "Do you know this man?" replied, "Yes; he kept company with me for five months, but I had known him for years. We were married at Nicetown, January 8, 1882, by Rev. Jabez Ferris. We were married on Monday. Tuesday he went away, but come back Wednesday and remained until Saturday, when he went away again, and I have never seen him since until now."

Sinclair had nothing to say in reply, and Annie Heisler, or Mrs. Sinclair No. 4, was ushered in weeping from the magistrate's private office. She was very tastefully dressed in black silk and was evidently much affected by the distressing position in which she has been placed. She produced her marriage certificate, which showed that she had been married to Sinclair May 16, 1882, by Rev. A. B. Chamberlain, pastor of the Third Church of the Deciples of Christ. "I knew him for six months," she testified, "and have lived with him up to the time of his arrest, the first knowledge of which I got from the papers." Sinclair being able to produce nothing in rebuttal, was committed to Moyamensing to await trial. The three wives gathered in the office of the magistrate and condoled with each other. Annie Heisler seemed the most grieved by her husband's outrageous conduct, but all were agreed in the opinion that he should be sent to prison for all he can get. This would be six years, if the sentences are made cumulative. As soon as Sinclair is convicted of his crime, the three wives will be released from him, and will be at liberty to marry again; but the first Mrs. Sinclair can only be separated through the regular course of a divorce suit.

A Family Reunion.

There was a remarkable family gathering Wednesday, says the Altoona Tribune, at Spring Meadow farm, near Hollidaysburg, where John H. Stifler has for many years resided. He is the father of twelve children, six sons and six daughters, the youngest of whom is 22 years old. Wednesday the entire family with the father and mother sat down at one table to dinner with a goodly array of sons-in-law and daughters-in-law at another table. There are are certainly few families of this size in which there has never been a funeral The children gathered under the roo tree from Connecticut in the east to California in the west. It was feared that one brother from Iowa would not be present. The family were already at the table, when an engine stopped on the railroad opposite the door and the lacking member stepped in, somewhat interrupting the dinner then in progress, but completing the number in the family gathering.

The National Guard.

Col. Hall, of West Point, the Regular Army officer who is to report his views to Gen. Sherman, relative to the late encampment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, declares that the Militia of Pennsylvania is far superior to that of any State. He expressed himself as completely surprised at the efficiency of the National Guard, and said that he thought it compared favorably with the best drilled troops of Europe. Governor Hoyt also stated that he was highly pleased.

—S. T. Stephenson, professor of penmanship, has placed several specimens of his skill in the show windows of the stationery stores. In that of J. C. Miller & Co. is a frame containing cards and another containing a pen drawing of a lion. The show windows of H. Y. Stitzer's bookstore contain a representation of a deer in the act of springing from a jutting cliff. They are all well executed and elicit many expressions of admiration.

Music in the Air.

Music-worshiping Bellefonte is without a band, but it reveled in music of this description on Monday night of last week, the Zion Band and Pleasant Gap Band visiting the borough at an early hour and continuing the musical revelry until the wee sma' hours of Tuesday morning. Ostensibly, the unexpected visit of these organizations was to serenade our distinguished fellow-citizen, Congressman Curtin, who arrived home on Saturday after a continuous attendance on the very long session of Congress which just came to an end. They serenaded him and the sweet strains which issued from their dulced-toned instruments elevated the peerless Congressman to the seventh heaven of delight and he responded with one of his energetic and peculiarly eloquent speeches. He said that he desired to accomplish some wonderful things in the last Congress; but the Republican members would not allow him to do so. The person who will represent the people of this district in the next Congress will have a more brilliant opportunity, provided (and there's the rub, Governor,) there is a sufficient Democratic majority to support him. The members of the bands also visited the hotels, and the Zion Band accompanied the Logan Hose Company to their hose house, after which they were escorted by a goodly number of the fire laddies to John Anderson's famous restaurant and regaled themselves on turtle soup, manufactured from the mammoth turtle which has for a week past been on exhibition in front of that establishment. Their visit was very enjoyable and they managed to keep light sleepers awake all the time they were in town, although sound slumberers were soothed into deeper sleep by the melodious strains. We hope they will soon return again.

Spring Mills Chit-Chat.

SPRING MILLS, Aug. 14, '82.

Candidates do not frequent this place as much as heretofore.

The Academy opened with some fifty students. This increase of the school plainly indicates that it must have an efficient and well qualified instructor. Mr. H. B. Twitmyer is assistant teacher and well merits all the honor and emolument which the position brings the one who holds it.

E. L. Bergstresser, photographer, is here immortalizing the gay and handsome faces of this place. His terms are reasonable, which secures him much work in his line of business.

The Spring Mills House is flooded with city boarders. To have a summer resort here is quite a novelty; but proves to be something very desirable, and is highly appreciated by those who avail themselves of the luxuries and amusements which it offers.

Our ambitious young friend, S. C. Stover, contemplates becoming a student of Franklin & Marshall College, at Lancaster, and will depart for that famous institution of learning abou the 4th of September. BEAN K.

—We learn that a young child of Mr. and Mrs. Al. Baney died last evening. We sympathise with the sorrowing parents in their affliction.

Notes from Three Places.

Mr. John Straw is a well-to-do farmer who resides near Julian. A recent illustration of the fact that he is imbued with the spirit of improvement exists in a large and commodious barn which was recently erected on his farm. It is an improvement which was needed and adds measurably to the value and appearance of his property.

The two farms owned by Mr. William Steele, near Martha, are very valuable properties and the rapidity with which they are increasing in value attest that their owner is a man of enterprise. Recent improvements attract the attention of all travelers in that direction.

Port Matilda is favored in having such a citizen as Mr. Huston Osman. He is a very skillful blacksmith and is also a justice of the peace, and in the pursuit of these occupations is an example of enterprise and industry to his neighbors.

The People's Excursion.

A grand daylight excursion to the sea shore will be given by the Pennsylvania railroad on the 24th inst., a special train with Pullman parlor cars attached, leaving Pittsburg at 8.16 a. m. Excursionists have the choice of going either to Cape May or Atlantic City. They will arrive at Philadelphia at an early hour on the evening of the 24th, and depart for the seashore next morning. Tickets are good to return until September 2d inclusive. Excursion tickets will be sold at the following stations at the rates named: Johnstown, $9.25; Cresson, $8.55; Altoona, $8.10; Tyrone, $7.65; Huntingdon, $7.10; Bedford, $8.50. Excursionists will no well to secure their tickets as early as possible, as only a limited number will be on sale. For other information, apply to your nearest agent, or to

—It is announced that the Logan Hose Company will hold a grand picnic and fireman's parade on the 1st of September, in which the Undine Hose Company and several fire organizations at a distance have been invited to participate. The day appointed for the fireman's picnic is the same as that on which a similar gathering will be held by the Juniata Valley Printers' Association, and will add to the general liveliness of the town as well as contribute to the pleasures of the parties who come here for a day of enjoyment.

—It is a disgrace that the people of Bellefonte are allowed to keep pig stys so near the noses of their neighbors, rendering it necessary to remain in doors and to keep the house closed during this weather to prevent the entrance of the horrible odor which proceeds from them. This is done in several places in the town, and we suggest that our borough authorities institute an investigation. If there is no ordinance preventing the keeping of pigs within a certain distance of a human habitation such an ordinance should be enacted by the borough council immediately.

—We desire to call the attention of the township supervisors to the condition of the public roads lying between Martha and Hannah furnaces. One or two men at work on these public thoroughfares only a few days could put them in suitable condition, but through pure and unadulterated negligence they are permitted to remain full of rocks, stones and ruts, to the great inconvenience of all who travel over them.

—Why is it that the peaches brought to the Bellefonte market are of such poor quality? Persons who recently arrived from Philadelphia say that peaches fully three times as large are offered for sale cheap in that city, while such specimens as are seen in Bellefonte are literally given away.

—The picnic of St. John's Catholic church on Wednesday was largely attended and enjoyable as well as financially remunerative.

Cuticura
THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER
Resolvent

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.
Reported by
F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my legs and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever.
LEE. M. FRAILEY, 64 South St., Baltimore.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment for the cure of Skin Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures.
Price of Cuticura, Small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent, $1.00 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25c.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

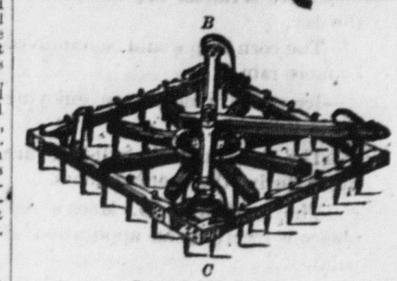
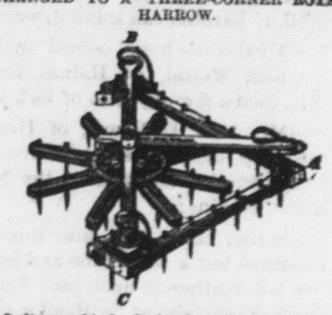
THE PENN HARROW
BEST IN THE WORLD
IT HAS NO EQUAL



Patented April 13, 1880.

The above cut represents the Penn Harrow complete, with all its combinations of Five Harrows and a sled for each Harrow; and each succeeding change is made from this Harrow without the least additional expense. By hooking the team to either point, B or C, the center revolves and gives the ground Two Strokes and Two Crossings in passing over it once, making it the most effective pulverizer in the market.
THIS HARROW HAS ONLY TO BE USED TO BE APPRECIATED.
See it before purchasing and you will buy no other.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO A THREE-CORNER ROTARY HARROW.

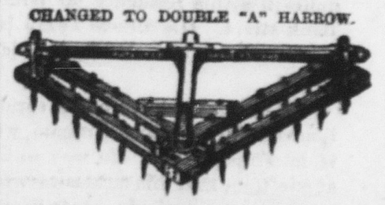


Indispensable for Orchards, as the revolving wheel harrows right up to and all around the trees without barking them.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO SINGLE "A" HARROW.

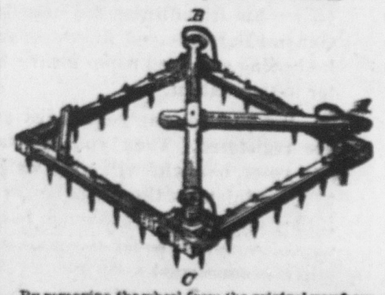
By removing the wing and wheel from the original you have a complete one-horse "A" Harrow.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO DOUBLE "A" HARROW.



Remove the wheel from the original, reverse the wing, and it makes the most complete Double "A" Harrow in the market.

The Penn Harrow
CHANGED TO A SQUARE HARROW.



By removing the wheel from the original you have a Harrow with three points to hook to. By hooking to B or C you can harrow in a furrow, and harrow the bottom and both sides, or over a ridge and harrow the top and both sides, or you can lift either point and have three points on the ground—something that cannot be done with any other Harrow.

The Penn Harrow
ON ITS SLED.

It has always been a great inconvenience to get the Harrow to and from the field. The Penn Harrow obviates this, as no matter which Harrow you wish to use in the combination, it has its own sled to haul it on.

The Penn Harrow
Is made of the best white oak, with steel teeth, well painted, in every way first-class. Formerly a harrow was the most unhandy implement on the farm; with our improvement it is the most convenient, will do double the work of any other harrow and save the farmer half his labor, and is warranted to do all we represent or money refunded. ORDER AT ONCE AND BE CONVINCED.
Price of the light draft Combination Penn Harrow, $30. Send for a Catalogue and see what farmers say.

Local Department.

—This is the harvest moon.

—Watermelons decorate the curb-stone.

—Short sermons are the order of the day.

—The corn crop would be improved by more rain.

—Ice cream venders are enjoying a rich harvest.

—The cricket and bull-frog are heard during the evening hours.

—The roof of P. G. Meek's residence is receiving an application of paint.

—Ex-Sheriff Piatt is an independent candidate for legislative honors in Lycoming county.

—A substantial new boardwalk is being laid in front of Mr. John Ardell's Linn street residence.

—Rev. Hall, of Chambersburg, assisted Rev. Hewitt with the services in the Episcopal church on Sunday.

—Barnum's circus will exhibit in Lock Haven, but not in Bellefonte. Well, if Barnum can stand it, we can.

—A valuable horse owned by Mr. Emanuel Wetzel, of Haines township, died a few days ago of lock-jaw.

—Mr. John D. Bower, of Haines township, departed several days ago to attend the fall term at the New Berlin Seminary.

—Spring came very late, summer remained but a short time and genuine fall weather is upon us. This is another year almost "without a summer."

—We understand that ex-Sheriff Woodring is ill of the same disease—diphtheria—which caused the death of his little daughter, Nannie, on Saturday.

—The communication of Mr. B. B. Else, of Milesburg, printed in another part of this paper, contains much truth and is worthy the consideration of all temperance advocates, who may profit by heeding its teaching.

—We greatly regret to learn that Mr. Jesse Stewart, a well-known contractor and mason of this place, is quite ill at his residence on Willow Bank street. His illness began last week and is considered quite dangerous.

—We regret to learn of the serious illness of Mr. Edward Graham, who is in Philadelphia. He was so low at one time that his father was summoned to his bedside. Intelligence received on Friday announced that he was better.

—Senator Don Cameron was called upon recently to deplete his bank account to the amount of $10,000, caused by his friendliness for the late General Burnside, of Rhode Island, he having endorsed paper for the latter to that extent.

—See that you pay your taxes and are registered. Then you can talk as a voter, one who will give weight to his opinions at the ballot box, even if they do not amount to much in the way of argument, so far as convincing others is concerned.

—The printers' picnic in this place, the soldiers' reunion at Rebersburg and other notable days and events will afford Gubernatoral, Congressional and Senatorial aspirants brilliant opportunities to make themselves acquainted with the "dear people."

—How sad it is that P. G. Meek did not lose a leg in the war, for then people might have found a reason to vote for him for something or other. We cannot call on the Democrats to return Meek's lost leg, as he was never known to lose anything in the service of his country. Before he is elected to an office, however, he will sing: "Saw my leg off—short."

—The tri-State picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, began at Williams' Grove, Cumberland county, on Monday. The rate of fare from this place is $6.52. It will close on Saturday, August 26. Governor Curtin, General Beaver and other big guns are on the programme for speeches almost every day during its continuance.

—The usefulness of a waiting room for either ladies or gentlemen in the depot building is discounted 100 per cent. this weather, especially for people who depart on the five o'clock p. m. train. The wide platform on the east side of the building, which is always well shaded at that hour, is the favorite tarrying place, and the large assemblage of people sometimes cause it to present quite a picnic scene.

Unionville News from Our Reporter's Note Book.

Among the improvements which attract visitors in this section is the tasteful addition recently made to the rear of the residence of Mr. John C. Peters, who resides on Dick's Run above Unionville. The residence has also been remodeled throughout and is now one of the most delightful and comfortable homes in this vicinity. It is universally acknowledged to be the handsomest on Dick's Run.

The store conducted by Messrs. Greist, in the borough of Unionville is increasing the extent of its business very rapidly, and an appearance of unusual activity prevails in and about that establishment. This has been accomplished against opposition of considerable importance, a new store having been opened recently directly opposite that of the Messrs. Greist. How much of this prosperity is due to Mr. Alexander Shipley, the accommodating clerk, we are not prepared to say, but his kind and obliging manners render him a desirable acquisition to any place of business.

Mr. William D. Smith, Unionville's progressive miller, is not putting all of his rapidly increasing wealth in the bank vaults, neither is he storing it away for mice, moth and rust to corrupt, but is now erecting one of the most magnificent brick residences in this or any other portion of Centre county. It will make a luxurious abode for his family when complete and we hope it will afford them much enjoyment and pleasure.

Mr. Reuben Underwood owns a very fine farm, which is located partly within the borough limits, which he contemplates offering for sale at only $2,600. If we were possessed of that amount of money we would invest and consider it a rare bargain.

While on the subject of farms, it is apropos to state that Mr. Andrew Calhoun recently divided his farm, erecting a very handsome house and barn on the new part of it. This increases the value of the property.

Mr. J. C. Stere, a veteran farmer, is giving the well-known farm owned by Dr. Blair the benefit of his skill and we doubt not both gentlemen will reap a rich harvest.

Among the further improvements of which Unionville can boast is a fine stable recently erected on the premises owned by Mr. G. F. Lee. It is a model structure of its kind.

Nor shall we omit to state that Daniel Hall, who has established a reputation second to none in Centre county as a skillful blacksmith, continues to prosecute his business with great activity. He maks a specialty of horse shoeing and all his patrons speak in high terms of the manner in which he performs that operation, which so many workmen do not properly understand.

Mr. William Resides is determined to carefully guard against all inroads of rats, which are sometimes quite troublesome, and with that object in view has erected a granery to his barn. Now the rats can look elsewhere for a toothsome nibble.

—There is a remarkable rivalry among manufacturers of baking powders, and some of the firms preparing this atricle, which is now in such great demand, have resorted to the unfair expedient of prejudicing consumers against all other preparations than their own by exhibiting from house to house a certain test purporting to show the quality of various powders. The facts are, this so-called test which we are told simply consists in adding a little iodine to a sample, can in no way reveal the true value of a baking powder, and is only calculated to deceive and prejudice the minds of the ignorant and unwary. Some powders are injurious, but this can only appear by analysis. The true value of a baking powder consists in the amount of leavening gas which is given off when heat and moisture are added to the flour, and it is only the chemist, with the aid of chemical appliances, who can determine the volume of gas which any powder can evolve. We will venture to say that there is not an article prepared for food that might not be manipulated by chemical tests to prove that something was wrong about it, and when a person goes into a kitchen, or before a housekeeper who is not to be presumed to understand chemical relations and performs an experiment of even the simplest character, it is not difficult to impress one that something awful is the matter.

—The presence of about two hundred workmen actively engaged in grading a railroad in the vicinity of Beech Creek arouses the interest and curiosity of people in that section.

—W. A. Williams, a blind musician of Blanchard, recently attended a festival at Curtin, where he attracted much attention by his fine performances on the organ.

Grange Resolutions.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted at the Centre county Pomona Grange, No. 13, P. of H., August 4th, 1882:

WHEREAS, In these times of political degeneracy when the public official most unfrequently plays the role of master instead of servant, and

WHEREAS, In many cases the sacred right of petition guaranteed by constitutional enactment is virtually disregarded and the expressed will of the people consigned to the waste basket; and

WHEREAS, We believe it to be a duty to commend the faithful and condemn the unfaithful; and

WHEREAS, The Representative in Congress from this district has been unremitting in his exertions to serve our people and organization by forwarding contributions of desirable cereals, cuttings and valuable public documents and his warm, constant support of the bill elevating the department of Agriculture to equal rank and honor with the other heads of departments and gracing the department with a Cabinet officer of equal rank and authority with other departments of our National Government; therefore

Resolved, That the warmest thanks of this Grange are due and are hereby tendered to Hon. A. G. Curtin, our able and energetic Representative in Congress, for the liberal manner in which he has been furnishing our several subordinate Granges with desirable cereals, cuttings and valuable public documents and his ardent support of the bill elevating the department of Agriculture to a Cabinet position with equal rank and authority with other departments of the National Government;

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the press for publication.

A Lesson in Pedestrianism.

If J. Willard Miller, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was not able to pursue his customary duties last Friday; if he did not visit the Association rooms as usual; if he was observed to walk slowly and appeared weary physically; it was not because his visit to the County Sabbath-school Convention at Centre Hill, on Thursday, was at all unsatisfactory, but was owing to the fact that his journey home was made under the most terrible difficulties possible to be conceived. At an early hour on Thursday evening he and Clement Dale, Esq., started from that distant village on their way home. When they had proceeded a short distance the vehicle in which they were riding broke down, and the worthy gentlemen were compelled to make their way home as best they could on foot. It must be remembered that they began their long walk over the mountain after the arduous and trying duties of the day, such as speech-making and other equally wearisome labors, and it was not very long before J. W. M. was ready to give up the journey and sleep all night by the roadside. It was three o'clock a. m.—just before the dawn of day—when they reached their comfortable boarding house. It is said that Mr. Dale stood the journey as well as a tramp with years of experience, but J. W. M. is entitled to the sympathy of the community!

Death of a Young Man.

A friend called on Friday to inform us of the sad fact that William Irwin, Jr., the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irwin, died on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of his parents near Jacksonville. His disease was intermittent fever, being ill about four weeks. He was seventeen years of age. He had one brother and five or six sisters and as his was the first death in a large and happy family the blow was a severe shock to them all. It was like the severing of one link in the golden chain that bound them to happiness and life, and henceforth there will be a tinge of sadness in the heart of each member of the family. But such events are not unmixed sorrows. They are sometimes designed for the good of those who survive. William said he was prepared for death, and as the ties of earth were broken another was formed whose end reaches heaven, upon which those who would again join the happy family band may firmly fix their affections.

The burial service were held at the residence of the deceased's parents on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Haughawaut, of the Mill Hall Presbyterian church, officiated.

Something to Drink.

Lemonade is one of the most pleasant drinks for the summer season that can be made. It is highly beneficial as a drink both morning and evening. People should not irritate the stomach by eating lemons clear; the powerful acid of the juice, which is almost corrosive, infallibly produces inflammation after awhile, but properly diluted so that it does not burn or draw the throat it does its full medicinal work. Take the juice of two or three lemons, as the appetite craves, in as much ice water as makes it pleasant to drink, without sugar, before going to bed. In the morning, on rising, or at least a half hour before breakfast, take the juice of one lemon in a goblet of water.

Death Record.

Mrs. Jonathan Bullock died of consumption at the home of her husband in Milesburg on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. She leaves a husband and several children. The funeral was held on Saturday at 1 o'clock p. m., the attendance being very large. Revs. Wright and Woodcock officiated.

Litte Nannie, a daughter of Ex-Sheriff Woodring, of this place, breathed her last on Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock, after suffering very severely for several days with diphtheria. She was about 4 years of age, and a very sweet, lovable child. Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The life of Mrs. Louis Wian, of Boiling Springs, terminated on Friday last, consumption having accomplished its fatal work. She had been ill a long time. Her husband and three children survive her. The funeral services and burial, on Sunday afternoon, attracted a large number of sympathising friends.

Lewis Swinehart, a former resident of Centre county, died on the 7th instant in Orangeville, Stephenson county, Illinois, aged 82 years, 4 months and 6 days. He was born on April 1, 1800, in this county, and it was only a few years ago that he left it to make his home in Illinois, where he died. His disease was cancer. His sufferings were intense and he longed for the end to come. His wife had been dead over 18 years. The many friends of the deceased in this county will be deeply pained to learn of his death, although such a result could not have been unexpected of one who had reached such a great age. He was very much esteemed by those who knew him.

The Cato Railroad.

There are now about 400 men at work at a place known as the "Hog Back," about twelve miles above Beech Creek. Forty thousand feet of lumber has been contracted for with Mr. J. I. Koons, of Eagleville, and supplies are being daily sent from that place in large quantities. This will be used in laying a railroad to the Cato coal fields, and the parties now operating have the inside track, and of course will do all in their power to maintain it. The survey they are working on runs through the Beech Creek coal fields, the Snow Shoe coal basin, about two miles north of the town of Snow Shoe, touches the Black Moshannon three miles northwest of Snow Shoe and follows the Black Moshannon a distance, and goes on into Clearfield county. Large purchases of coal lands have recently been made in Clearfield county by ex-Senator Wallace and S. R. Peale, Esq., and it is stated the lands were purchased for W. H. Vanderbilt. The coal lands in the Snow Shoe region recently owned by Mr. Samual Christ, of Lock Haven, are also said to have been purchased for Vanderbilt by Mr. Reading, of Williamsport.

—The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. met Friday night at the home of F. P. Green, as the members desired to call upon Mr. Green, who is not yet able to meet with them at the Association rooms. Among other things of interest to those who are working up the gymnasium was the report that the rent asked for the third floor of the bank building was double what had been anticipated. Consequently the Board instructed the secretary to look up a certain other place for the use of the gymnasium. Another plan was mapped out for the accomplishment of the object in case number two fails. So those who are interested need not despair of success. The kindness of Mr. Geo. D'Almaine to the Association is again manifest, but we dare not tell how. A course of practical talks on various interesting subjects was arranged for the coming winter. The talks will be for young men and will be given by some of our leading townsmen.

—The Rev. Mr. Marquis, of St. Louis, delivered two highly instructive sermons in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, that at the evening service being pronounced equal to any discourse of that character heard in Bellefonte for a long time. It was on a difficult subject—the sin against the Holy Spirit—and his exposition of the various passages of Scripture bearing on the subject was extremely interesting and edifying. An outline of the sermon would be incomplete and we shall not attempt it. He corrected many mistaken impressions regarding this peculiar sin; proved negatively that it was not mere blasphemy of the third Person of the adorable Trinity, and by a careful process of reasoning, illumined by the divine Word, he showed in what the sin does consist. He has a strong voice and excellent delivery and it is needless to say his remarks were listened to with close attention —Jars are now prevalent in every family. Fruit jars, of course.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. Edward Richards is breathing the exhilerating breezes of Snow Shoe.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Malin and children returned home on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Judge Rockefeller and daughter, of Sunbury, are visiting Mrs. O. S. Hoover.

Hon. S. T. Shugert, of the Democrat, is absent on one of his flying visits to the State Capital.

Mr. Harry Williams, of Philipsburg, has recently been visiting among his Bellefonte friends.

Mr. Cal Brachbill, of Curwensville, spent Sunday at the home of his parents in this place.

Mrs. George Weaver has returned home after a pleasant visit among friends in Philipsburg.

Alva S. Grow, of the Lock Haven Journal, attended the re-union of soldiers' orphans in Harrisburg.

W. A. Murray, one of Centre county's representatives, registered at the Brockerhoff House on Wednesday.

Mr. L. S. Roberts, of Orange, N. J., arrived on Wednesday night and is helping Mr. W. H. Humes run his Coalville farm.

Miss Maggie Jackson, who has been visiting in town, returned to her home in Osceola on Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. Joe W. Furey.

Mrs. Fields, a daughter of the late Judge Hale, arrived in town on Thursday and will remain with her sister, Mrs. Stone, until the advent of cold weather.

Edward Garman returned from his tour of the Eastern States on Monday, his face highly sunburned and his tongue voluminously expressive of the pleasures of the past two weeks.

Misses Maggie Hering and Annie Batcheler, two of Lock Haven's fair inhabitants, are sojourning among relatives and friends at Spring Mills, where they arrived on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. G. Love returned home from Philadelphia on Monday. Her errand in that city was to consult an occulist in regard to her eyes, the sight of which has been failing of late.

Mr. Franklyn, of New York, is the guest of Mr. George Hale. He is the possessor of a remarkably fine voice and was a valuable addition to the choir of the Episcopal church, which he assisted at both services on Sunday.

Miss Jennie Dare, who has been spending a large part of the summer among friends in Berwick and vicinity, returned home on Friday afternoon. Her numerous admirers here were enthusiastically rejoiced to welcome her back.

Misses Judith Rice, of Galveston, Texas, Louisa Leonard, of Lyons, N. Y., and Kate Best, of Clearfield, Pa., who have visited during the last three weeks at the residence of Judge John H. Orvis, departed on Friday. The brilliancy of Bellefonte's summer society is materially decreased by their separation from it.

Mrs E. G. Hannam, who has been spending a short time at the residence of her parents in this place, returned to her home in Catawissa on Thursday. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Lizzie Keyser, who will be absent about two weeeks. As Miss Lizzie is a very bright and vivacious young lady her departure is a source of regret and her return will be hailed with delight by her numerous friends here.

R. B. Hen[illegible]men, of Spartansburg, South Caro[illegible]ina, who has been visiting Balser W[illegible]ber, of Howard, was in town on Tuesday and under the escort of Mr. Daley, of that place, called at our office. He considers that there is much more liberality of sentiment and opinion on political topics in the North than in the South, and represents the region in which he resides as a greater hot-bed of political prejudice than we thought possible.

Mr. William Ludwig, the competent bookkeeper for Hicks & Co., is off on a visit to Reading. This brief respite from duty was found necessary, as there is no other known remedy for the serious affection of the heart—that soft, tender sentiment called love—with which he has of late been afflicted. In fact, rumor says that he has done what so many of the Bellefonte beaux have done before him—gone off to get married. The date of his return with his blushing bride has not yet been fixed.

—Two bush meetings held forth in the vicinity of Valentines' grove on Sunday. During the day vehicles of all descriptions carried passengers to and from the grounds, and the day seemed more like one devoted to some grand frolic than the day set apart to the worship of God. A good many drunken individuals attended and their bacchanalian songs when returning were strongly suggestive of a circus or a beer garden.

The Death of an Infant.

Wednesday morning, while all nature, bright and beautiful, was awaking to the life and light of another day, Death entered one of the happy households of our town and removed its youngest member—John Freeze Harrison Hewitt, infant son of Rev. John Hewitt, aged about five months. The little one had suffered ever since his entry into this world and a compassionate Providence has removed him to where sickness and suffering never come. In the sweet innocence of childhrod he was gathered into a loving Father's arms. "Of such is the kingdom of Heaven." Rev. Mr. Marquis and wife, of St. Louis, accompanied by several other relatives, arrived on the 8.55 p. m. train on Tuesday night, just in time to see the little one ere his spirit took its flight.

Bellefonte Boat Club Meeting.

The popular new organization known as the Bellefonte Boat Club met in regular session last Monday evening. The committee appointed at a previous meeting to draft a constitution reported, the report being adopted. D. G. Bush, Esq., was made an honorary member of the club with all the privileges of full membership. The following officers were elected to act until the 1st Monday in March: President, J. M. Brockerhoff; Vice President, F. P. Blair; Secretary, Wilbur Reeder; Treasurer, J. N. Gordon. The trustees are Lawrence Brown, L. T. Munson and Isaac Mitchell. A boat house is being built and thi boats have arrived.

—The basket-lunch Sunday school convention at Centre Hill on Thursday, the 17th inst., was the first experiment of the kind in Northern Pennsylvania. Many witnesses will cheerfully testify that it was a very gratifying success. The large audience room of the church was full at the three sessions and the baskets more than sufficed to satisfy the temporal wants of the large and happy assemblage of adults and children. The most delightful feature of the convention was the manifest and sweetly experienced proof of an essential unanimity among all the servants of the Lord. C.

—To get rid of cockroaches, ants of every kind, and vermin generally, in kitchen, beds and pantries, sprinkle alum water copiously in cracks, at washboards and other crevices. Boil a pound of alum in two quarts of water, and when dissolved apply the liquor.

—The Philipsburg Journal styles that place a "city." It is customary in the West to denominate every small collection of houses a "city," but it is certainly not desirable for eastern people to follow the example of their western cousins.

—The process of manufacturing steel, as undertaken by the company which recently established steel works here, is, we understand, a failure and the experiment has been given up for the present, after quite a heavy expense.

—George B. Jack, Esq., has been appointed postmaster at Boalsburg Centre county, Pa., vice Col. James T. Sewart resigned.

—The fruit canning season is here and sugar goes up in price.
